COLUMBUS BOILING OVER AS PRINCETON GAME DRAWS THRONG

Old Grads Prepare To Celebrate Big Home-Coming

COLUMBUS, O., Nov. 2.—This otherwise tranquil citadel of state matters boiled and bubbled today with a mad preparation to do the apparently impossible—accommodate more football fans tomorrow than flooded the city two weeks ago for the Michigan gridiron business.

The Princeton Tigers dropped off a special train here this morning and heard the town buzzing like a big locust. The game tomorrow will be one of the most important intersectional games of the season. Besides this is home-coming week for the Ohio school.

Things went round and round. Importance was a common trademark. Half the mob took its football very seriously. The others were thankful for the excuse to stimulate the week end activity to an unnatural pitch, wiser after the fast doings of two weeks ago, authorities gave out all sorts of dictums. Hotel managers wrinkled their brows with worry.

B. F. McDonald, state prohibition commissioner, brought a clenched fist down and declared he would do all in his power to enforce the liquor laws during the noise incident to the football game, which usually includes celebrations the night before the game and the one after the game—the winning team making absolutely no difference in the amount of noise.

Harry E. French, the local police chief, also issued an order to his patrolmen, to make arrests where it is evident the Volstead law is being made light of.

The card was filled with dinners, dances, parties and informal festivities.

The rare few interested in the outcome of the game itself, were

SON'S TESTIMONY CONVICTS FATHER

COLUMBUS, O., Nov. 2.—Convicted upon the strength of testimony given by his son, Joseph See of near Waverly, O., faced a sentence of from one to seventeen years in the state penitentiary today on charges of stealing chickens.

The son, William, 21, was convicted recently and was sentenced to ten years. He denied, at that time, that his father was implicated. Yesterday, however, the boy was called as a state witness and changed his testimony.

Formal sentence was deferred pending hearing on a motion for new trial.

The boy testified he, his father and two other men stole sixty-seven chickens valued at $105.

The county prosecutor, in presenting his case, said the elder See served a sentence in 1902 on a similar charge, from Paulding County.

EX-SPRINGFIELD MAYOR SUMMONED

SPRINGFIELD, Nov. 2.—Gen. W. R. Burnett, 82, former commander of the soldiers' home at Sandusky and who served in the fourth independent battalion of cavalry in the Civil War, died here last night after a long illness. Gen. Burnett was the sixth Civil War veteran to die in the past ten days. He was mayor of Springfield three times and was known throughout southeastern and central Ohio. Funeral arrangements will be announced today.

ROBINSON HEARD BY INDIANA CROWD

FORT WAYNE, Ind., Nov. 2.—Concluding his Indiana campaign, Senator Joseph T. Robinson, Democratic vice presidential nominee, addressed a jammed house of more than 2,500 here last night.

A five minute ovation greeted the nominee as he stepped into the hall. A street parade preceded the meeting. Robinson made an appeal for unprejudiced consideration of the campaign issues.

VICTIM OF STRANGE LOVE TEST DIES; CASE STILL IS MYSTERY

Death Leaves Authorities No Nearer Solution; Hitchcock Faces Girl; Several Theories Being Probed.

LAKE BLUFF, Ill., Nov. 2.—Miss Elfrieda Knaak died here early today of burns received in a furnace in the basement of the police station here early this week.

The death of the pretty 29-year-old book agent left unsolved the mystery of her strange case.

Miss Knaak clung to her original story of "self torture" to "purify herself" and to satisfy a "spiritual love."

"I have told you all—you wouldn't understand," the dying girl moaned to her brothers and friends who sought to aid authorities investigating the weird burning.

Physicians last night reported Miss Knaak was sinking rapidly.

A conference between State's Attorney A. V. Smith in charge of the investigation, and physicians resulted in the decision to confront Elfrieda with her "spiritual lover," the "Hitch" of her delirious mumblings.

Accordingly, Night Policeman Hitchcock, former movie and vaudeville comedian, was brought to the hospital. He hobbled into the little hospital room and greeted the dying girl.

Authorities apparently were no nearer solution of the case than they were several days ago.

The theory that Miss Knaak tried to commit suicide virtually has been abandoned and the theory that she was the victim of a degenerate came to the fore.

At the same time there was a shred of evidence that Miss Knaak had arranged a weird "fire ordeal" pact with some one.

Investigators planned to make the following moves:

Question three known Lake Bluff degenerates.

Make a thorough search of a room off the furnace room to unearth, if possible, some clew that would indicate she was attacked.

Delve into the past life of Miss Knaak more thoroughly to see if she was deeply interested in any strange cults.

GAS MAIN BLAST INJURES NINE

A gas explosion completely demolished this house and damaged two others in Cincinnati, O., resulting in the injury of nine persons. The blast occurred when two men tested a main which had been moved in the house.

Telephone Company To Honor Miss Hawes

Twenty-five years in the same office—without missing a day, except during vacations.

Such is the record which will be marked this month by the presentation of a 25-year service emblem to Miss Irene Hawes, chief operator in Yellow Springs for the Ohio Bell Telephone Company.

Miss Hawes, who lives at 111 Center College St., Yellow Springs, is a native of the Blue Grass state, her birthplace being Hawesville, Kentucky, where she attended high school.

Her first job was as a clerk in her brother's store in Kentucky. Later she became secretary at the Methodist Home in Yellow Springs.

Miss Hawes' service in the telephone business began on the morning of November 17, 1903, the day on which the Yellow Springs exchange was opened. Since then she has been on the job in the Yellow Springs office, rain or shine, without a day's interruption.

"No matter how bad the weather might be, blizzards included, Miss Hawes always manages to reach the office," said H. W. Cleaver, Ohio Bell commercial manager.

Miss Hawes has two hobbies—her work and her radio.

MAN PERISHES IN GAS BLAST

COLUMBUS, O., Nov. 2.—Virgil Brooks, 49, was burned to death in an explosion and fire at the Gas Products Company plant here today. Brooks was working in the "balloon pit" where oxygen tanks are filled, when the explosion occurred. Company officials said they believed Brooks was smoking and that a spark from his cigaret ignited the gas.

HOPPE LOSES MOVE TO HALT EXECUTION

COLUMBUS, O., Nov. 2.—The State Supreme Court today overruled the appeal of Stanley Hoppe, Toledo, sentenced to death for the murder of a seven-year-old girl in Toledo last May.

Hoppe was to have been electrocuted tonight but the court late yesterday gave him a week's stay so that it might have time to consider his appeal for review.

The stay of execution has been sent to the warden so Hoppe still has another week to live unless an appeal is carried to the U. S. Supreme Court and further stay granted or the governor intervenes.

ECKENER SAYS TRIP PROVES BIGGER AIR LINERS ARE NEEDED

Two More Dirigibles To Be Constructed He Announces

FRIEDRICHSHAFEN, Germany, Nov. 2.—Plans for building two vast dirigibles for trans-Atlantic service, bigger, faster and stronger than the Graf Zeppelin, were announced today by Dr. Hugo Eckener.

Dr. Eckener discussed the lessons learned from the trip of the Graf Zeppelin to the United States and return, which was completed here early yesterday.

Eckener said two immense hangars would be required for the new Leviathans of the air. One hangar would be in Berlin, he said, and the site of the other has not been decided. However he believed the Rhine Valley was the most favorable spot for a central trans-Atlantic airport and suggested Baden as a good location.

Eckener repeated that the return flight of the Graf Zeppelin, during which she was beaten down almost to the water by a gale off Newfoundland and at times was close to disaster, had demonstrated that the Graf Zeppelin was inadequate for ocean service.

The Graf Zeppelin's commander, speaking at the banquet here in his honor said the Atlantic had not been conquered by his airship. He described the furious gales in the storm through which the ship struggled off Newfoundland. He said that the great dirigible buffeted about and forced down "flying as low as fifty meters over the high seas. It was only through fortunate circumstainces that the flight continued."

"It will be necessary to run airships with stronger motors at higher speed," he said.

Dr. Schutte, director of the Scientific Society for Aeronautics, was highly enthused about the Graf Zeppelin's trip.

"The Zeppelin has proved itself to have a degree of stability that is necessary in trans-Atlantic flights. It demonstrated its capacity as a passenger carrier and also its value for use on scientific expeditions," Dr. Schutte said.

Monday night was the stormiest one of the voyage. Some of the passengers slept while others lay awake and listened to the roaring of the heavy seas, interspersed with the purring of the motors.

In the daylight, ice floes and icebergs greeted the eyes of those on board the dirigible. The gale had whipped the surface into those gigantic running seas for which the North Atlantic has long been famous. Great clouds of spray shot into the air as the seas churned and broke about the bergs.

By Tuesday, the winds abated, but it was icy cold. As the flight reached a point half way between Newfoundland and Ireland, the wind had subsided more.

German newspaper correspondents said the gale off Newfoundland had surprised Eckener and frightened the passengers. This storm, they said, was worse than the one off Bermuda during the westward flight when the airship's fin was torn, but it served the more to emphasize the Graf Zeppelin's seaworthiness.

From breakfast time, Wednesday, the passengers looked forward to an expected landfall and first sight of European soil. Later, they were disheartened to learn that the airship had been blown nearly 600 kilometers off its course.

Joy reigned on board when at 7:30 Wednesday night, the Zeppelin bid farewell to the ocean as it sped over France, over the Loire, sixty-seven hours out of Lakehurst.

TWO ARE KILLED

STEUBENVILLE, Nov. 2.—Mrs. Roxie Dugan of Follansbee, W. Va., and William Roush, 23, of Wellsburg, W. Va., were killed here last night when their automobile turned over while rounding a sharp curve. Two other persons, Bernard Dugan, son of Mrs. Dugan, and Charles Braner, 26, of Follansbee, were injured.

DRIVER LICENSES

COLUMBUS, Nov. 2.—The legislative committee of the Ohio Safety Council has drafted a bill which, if enacted, would require motorists to obtain state licenses. The bill was drawn by Harold Gorman of Cleveland, chairman of the legislative committee, and Judge Lee Skeel of the Cleveland traffic court.

NOMINEE PAUSES ON WESTERN TRIP; BIG CROWD BRAVES RAIN

Speaks In St. Louis Tonight; Heard In Maryland

CINCINNATI, O., Nov. 2.—Herbert Hoover, the Republican presidential standard-bearer, paused in Cincinnati early today only long enough to say "good morning" and "good bye."

The train bearing the Republican nominee to Palo Alto, Calif., his home, where he will cast his ballot and await the outcome of the election, arrived here at 6:45 a. m. five minutes behind schedule.

Three thousand Republicans, including all the county party leaders, shouted a roaring welcome as the train pulled into the station.

A deluge of rain was falling but it failed to dampen the ardor of spirits of the welcoming throng.

Hoover did not appear on the observation platform until the train came to a stop.

When he appeared and waved "good morning," the crowd cheered lustily and yelled for Mrs. Hoover, "the first lady of the land," but Mrs. Hoover did not appear.

The train pulled out five minutes later with Hoover waving goodbye.

ABOARD HERBERT HOOVER'S SPECIAL TRAIN ENROUTE TO PALO ALTO, Nov. 2.—Herbert Hoover tarried for a while today in the blue grass state in an effort to obtain the support of the farfamed Kentucky colonel whose political inclinations this presidential year are puzzling both parties. The Republican candidate will make a bid for the state's thirteen electoral votes today in a speech at Louisville, one of the four he scheduled on this trip home to California to cast his vote.

Ohio, known as "the mother of presidents," caught only a fleeting glimpse of Hoover before his en-

POLICE WOUND DOCK WORKERS DURING FIGHT

Union Men Attack Volunteer Workers In Australia

SYDNEY, Australia, Nov. 2. — Police and union dock laborers fought for half an hour in the streets today. The police, confronted by 1,000 workmen, were outnumbered and fired on the crowd. Three men were wounded, one seriously.

It was the most serious disorder growing out of the recently settled water front strike. The union men, angered at the protection given to volunteer workers who took their places during the strike, attacked a group of volunteers in the street.

Police tried to stand between the two factions but were stoned by the rioters.

PRIEST, AUTHOR OF BOYS' BOOKS, DIES

CINCINNATI, O., Nov. 2. —The Rev. Father Francis J. Finn, S. J., one of the most widely known Catholic Jesuits in the state and noted for his books for boys, died in a hospital here early today after a three year illness. Father Finn entered the hospital only a few days ago when physicians warned him that his condition was critical.

EIGHTY HURT WHEN POLICE ATTACKED

BERLIN, Nov. 2.—Eighty Ukrainian students and Polish police were estimated to have been wounded in Lemberg, Poland, during a disturbance today.

TODAY'S CHUCKLE

SEATTLE, Wash., Nov. 2.—John L. Norman, 72, lived with his wife for 40 years, but when she left the dishes standing unwashed for thirty days that was too much. He filed suit for divorce.

BRAND NEW ELECTION BOARD IN CHARGE NOW IN CLEVELAND

CLEVELAND, O., Nov. 2.—Secretary of State Clarence J. Brown today was expected to write finis to one of the most exciting chapters in the annals of Cuyahoga County politics, by certifying the appointments of a complete new board of elections.

The appointments were made by the two major political parties after Brown dismissed the old board members on charges of nonfeasance, presented by a special grand jury. Attorney General Edward C. Turner directed the jury probe.

The new Republican appointees are Mrs. Amasa Stone Mather and W. A. C. Smith.

The Democratic appointees are Maurice Bernon and John Krause.

Bernon and Krause were nominated after a warm fight between Burr Congwer, county Democratic leader, and the McGinty-Hanratty factions.

The fight centered around the proposed appointment of former Sheriff Peter Witt and Sylvester McMahon, both of whom were defeated.

One of the Democratic appointees replaces Mrs. Bernice S. Pyke who was discharged despite the fact that she became a member of the board only last August.

Brown held, in effect, that Mrs. Pyke was negligent in failing to reveal alleged fraudulent practices on the part of other board members.

BURNS ARE FATAL

Miss Elfrieda Knaak, Lake Forest, Ill, above, principal in a strange furnace burning mystery, died from her burns early Friday without furnishing authorities with a more intelligent theory of their source than that she attempted a "love test" by fire. Below is Chas. W. Hitchcock, 45, Lake Bluff, Ill., policeman, elocution teacher and village Adonis, whom the girl said was the object of her spiritual love. Hitchcock is the father of four children and is pictured above with his daughter, Alpha.

RUSSIANS RELENT TOWARD BANISHED

LONDON, Nov. 2.—The Russian Soviet government has decided to be more lenient to Leon Trotsky, exiled leader, and other members of the "opposition" who were banished from the Communist party, it was disclosed from reliable sources today.

Trotsky, it was said, will be permitted soon to leave his present primitive place of exile in Turkestan, six miles from Moscow, and go to Soukhum in the Caucasus. Soukhum is an Idyllic watering place resembling the Riviera and only three days from Moscow.

CURTIS NEARS END OF SPEAKING TOUR

DES MOINES, Ia., Nov. 2.—Senator Charles Curtis, Republican nominee for vice president, neared the end of his last bid for the farm vote today.

He left here for Moberly, Mo., where he will speak tonight. From there he goes to his home state for two last speeches before election, in Wichita and Topeka.

Speaking last night before 4,000 persons here Senator Curtis declared farmers may expect no relief if the Democratic ticket is elected.

DIES IN AUTOMOBILE

WARREN, Nov. 2. Heart disease was attributed today as the cause of the death of Fred Hann, 27, of Akron, who died in his automobile while returning from a trip east.

NOEL MORRIS TAKES LIFE; TANNHAUSER PARALLEL BLAMED

Wealthy Son Of Antioch Trustee Shoots Himself.

NEW YORK, Nov. 2.—Noel Morris, member of one of America's oldest families and a direct descendant of Governor Bradford, the Pilgrim leader, is dead today—apparently nerved to the point of suicide by the stirring strains of Wagner's opera "Tannhauser."

Morris' body was found late yesterday behind locked doors in his luxurious apartment on Seventieth St., his hand clutching a revolver and a bullet through the head.

On a desk was found a neatly typed note, thrust between the pages of his diary. The note said:

"This is the closing entry. Tannhauser was not able to stick it out, but I am."

Police today reconstructed a strange story of how the young philosophy student returned from the opera Wednesday night where he had heard Maria Jeritza and Rudolf Laubenthal sing the principal roles in "Tannhauser."

Apparently Morris had not intended to take his life when he first got back from the opera.

Morris had lain in bed brooding over the fate of "Tannhauser," the German knight who wandered over the world, arrived at the court of Venus, and gave himself up to worldly pleasure, only to flee it and make a pilgrimage to the Vatican to seek forgiveness.

Morris must have seen some parallel between his life and the Tannhauser of legend, because he arose, went into the bathroom and shot himself through the head.

Relatives could offer no explanation for the apparent suicide. They said he was in excellent health except for an injury to his right hand. He was said to have been in excellent spirits when he left for the opera. He recently had been employed as a research expert at the Russell Sage Foundation on Social Research.

Morris' mother, who was Alice Vanderbilt Shepard, is a great-granddaughter of Commodore Vanderbilt. His father, David H. Morris, is vice president of the St. Louis Southwestern Railway and a trustee of Antioch College, Yellow Springs, Ohio, where young Morris was educated.

An autopsy will be held today.

Morris attended Antioch College three years and left the school a year ago last June. He did not graduate from Antioch and seemed to have difficulty in adapting himself in school and making plans on the completion of his education, Antioch officials said Friday.

He was active on the campus, they say and seemed to have a cheery disposition with no visible indication of morbidity.

After leaving Antioch, he engaged in social service work in New York City.

HUGE RECEPTION IS PLANNED BY GOTHAM FOR "FAVORITE SON"

New York Will Out-Do Previous Affairs To Honor Smith.

NEW YORK, Nov. 2.—The boy who came up from the sidewalks of New York to become the presidential nominee of the Democratic party will ride down Broadway today like an emperor.

Plans have been made to give Gov. Alfred E. Smith the greatest of the great receptions this town has showered upon returning war heroes, aviators, kings and princes. The brown derby has been carefully brushed for the occasion which will climax the home town boy's 15,000 mile campaign parade over the nation, a march which witnessed riotous demonstrations by uncounted millions of persons.

The parade is to start at noon at the Battery, that tip of Manhattan Island where all the immigrants land. Through the canyon of skyscrapers on lower Broadway it is to proceed to the city hall where the governor's friend Mayor James J. Walker is to climb aboard. He will lead Smith's procession over its five mile Broadway route to Columbus Circle, through the wholesale clothing district, the department store colony and the theatrical area. At the famous cross streets of Forty-Second and Broadway, Times Square, the largest crowd is expected.

Every available policeman has been ordered into uniform to do duty along the route.

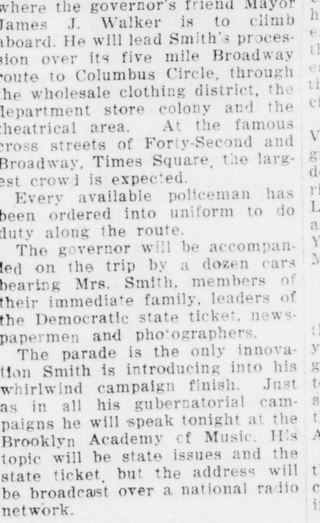

The governor will be accompanied on the trip by a dozen cars bearing Mrs. Smith, members of their immediate family, leaders of the Democratic state ticket, newspapermen and photographers.

The parade is the only innovation Smith is introducing into his whirlwind campaign finish. Just as in all his gubernatorial campaigns he will speak tonight at the Brooklyn Academy of Music. His topic will be state issues and the state ticket, but the address will be broadcast over a national radio network.

FIRES FATAL TO TWO

TOLEDO, O., Nov. 2.—Two persons were dead here today, the victims of fires. They were Cletus Marquart who died after her dress caught fire from a bathroom heater and Lewis French, 50, who was trapped and burned to death when his bedroom caught fire.

Italy's "Margot"

Italy's "Margot Asquith," Vittoria Colonna, Duchess of Sermoneta, who is engaged in writing her memoirs which Rome expects will cause as much discussion as Lady Asquith's did a few years ago, is planning a visit to the United States. She is to be the guest of Mary Pickford and Douglas Fairbanks in California.

POLITICS ON THE RADIO

NEW YORK, Nov. 2.—Nationwide networks will broadcast tonight's campaign addresses of Alfred E. Smith and Herbert Hoover. In addition, talks by Senator William E. Borah and Franklin D. Roosevelt, candidate for governor of New York, are to be heard over lesser chains of radio stations.

Roosevelt will be the first on the air. His address will be heard over WEAF, WGY and WGR from 8 to 9 p. m. Eastern time. The Cities Service hour which usually occupies this period will be broadcast over sixteen other stations of the N. B. C. red network.

Microphones will be set up for broadcasting Hoover's St. Louis speech at 9 p. m., Eastern time. The Republican candidate will speak for an hour over a network of thirty-five stations, including six on the Pacific Coast.

The chain will include WEAF, WGY and WSAI.

Smith will speak from the platform of the Brooklyn Academy of Music from 10 to 11 p. m. Eastern time. A coast-to-coast network has been arranged and the regular Friday night Democratic program on the N. B. C. network has been cancelled in order to permit broadcasting of the speech in full.

Listeners may hear Smith over WJZ, KDKA or WLW.

Speaking from Boston, Borah will be on the air from 10:30 to 11:30 p. m. Eastern time. A network of twelve stations will be used, including WEAF, and WGY.

Saturday night's political broadcasting on the big chaines will be principally Democratic. The rally in Madison Square Garden will be broadcast by a number of N. B. C. stations, with a coast-to-coast hookup.

At the conclusion of Smith's address in Madison Square Garden, individual stations on the network will broadcast talks by state and local Democratic candidates.

Joy reigned on board when at 7:30 Wednesday night, the Zeppelin bid farewell to the ocean as it sped over France, over the Loire, sixty-seven hours out of Lakehurst.

TWO ARE KILLED

STEUBENVILLE, Nov. 2.—Mrs. Roxie Dugan of Follansbee, W. Va., and William Roush, 23, of Wellsburg, W. Va., were killed here last night when their automobile turned over while rounding a sharp curve. Two other persons, Bernard Dugan, son of Mrs. Dugan, and Charles Braner, 26, of Follansbee, were injured.

DRIVER LICENSES

COLUMBUS, Nov. 2.—The legislative committee of the Ohio Safety Council has drafted a bill which, if enacted, would require motorists to obtain state licenses. The bill was drawn by Harold Gorman of Cleveland, chairman of the legislative committee, and Judge Lee Skeel of the Cleveland traffic court.

NOMINEE PAUSES ON WESTERN TRIP; BIG CROWD BRAVES RAIN

Speaks In St. Louis Tonight; Heard In Maryland

CINCINNATI, O., Nov. 2.—Herbert Hoover, the Republican presidential standard-bearer, paused in Cincinnati early today only long enough to say "good morning" and "good bye."

The train bearing the Republican nominee to Palo Alto, Calif., his home, where he will cast his ballot and await the outcome of the election, arrived here at 6:45 a. m. five minutes behind schedule.

Three thousand Republicans, including all the county party leaders, shouted a roaring welcome as the train pulled into the station.

A deluge of rain was falling but it failed to dampen the ardor of spirits of the welcoming throng.

Hoover did not appear on the observation platform until the train came to a stop.

When he appeared and waved "good morning," the crowd cheered lustily and yelled for Mrs. Hoover, "the first lady of the land," but Mrs. Hoover did not appear.

The train pulled out five minutes later with Hoover waving goodbye.

ABOARD HERBERT HOOVER'S SPECIAL TRAIN ENROUTE TO PALO ALTO, Nov. 2.—Herbert Hoover tarried for a while today in the blue grass state in an effort to obtain the support of the farfamed Kentucky colonel whose political inclinations this presidential year are puzzling both parties. The Republican candidate will make a bid for the state's thirteen electoral votes today in a speech at Louisville, one of the four he scheduled on this trip home to California to cast his vote.

Ohio, known as "the mother of presidents," caught only a fleeting glimpse of Hoover before his en-

POLICE WOUND DOCK WORKERS DURING FIGHT

Union Men Attack Volunteer Workers In Australia

SYDNEY, Australia, Nov. 2.—Police and union dock laborers fought for half an hour in the streets today. The police, confronted by 1,000 workmen, were outnumbered and fired on the crowd. Three men were wounded, one seriously.

It was the most serious disorder growing out of the recently settled water front strike. The union men, angered at the protection given to volunteer workers who took their places during the strike, attacked a group of volunteers in the street.

Police tried to stand between the two factions but were stoned by the rioters.

PRIEST, AUTHOR OF BOYS' BOOKS, DIES

CINCINNATI, O., Nov. 2.—The Rev. Father Francis J. Finn, S. J., one of the most widely known Catholic Jesuits in the state and noted for his books for boys, died in a hospital here early today after a three year illness. Father Finn entered the hospital only a few days ago when physicians warned him that his condition was critical.

EIGHTY HURT WHEN POLICE ATTACKED

BERLIN, Nov. 2.—Eighty Ukrainian students and Polish police were estimated to have been wounded in Lemberg, Poland, during a disturbance today.

TODAY'S CHUCKLE

SEATTLE, Wash., Nov. 2.—John L. Norman, 72, lived with his wife for 40 years, but when she left the dishes standing unwashed for thirty days that was too much. He filed suit for divorce.

BRAND NEW ELECTION BOARD IN CHARGE NOW IN CLEVELAND

CLEVELAND, O., Nov. 2.—Secretary of State Clarence J. Brown today was expected to write finis to one of the most exciting chapters in the annals of Cuyahoga County politics, by certifying the appointments of a complete new board of elections.

The appointments were made by the two major political parties after Brown dismissed the old board members on charges of nonfeasance, presented by a special grand jury. Attorney General Edward C. Turner directed the jury probe.

The new Republican appointees are Mrs. Amasa Stone Mather and W. A. C. Smith.

The Democratic appointees are Maurice Bernon and John Krause. Bernon and Krause were nominated after a warm fight between Burr Congwer, county Democratic leader, and the McGinty-Hanratty factions.

The fight centered around the proposed appointment of former Sheriff Peter Witt and Sylvester McMahon, both of whom were defeated.

One of the Democratic appointees replaces Mrs. Bernice S. Pyke who was discharged despite the fact that she became a member of the board only last August.

Brown held, in effect, that Mrs. Pyke was negligent in failing to reveal alleged fraudulent practices on the part of other board members.

BURNS ARE FATAL

Miss Elfrieda Knaak, Lake Forest, Ill, above, principal in a strange furnace burning mystery, died from her burns early Friday without furnishing authorities with a more intelligent theory of their source than that she attempted a "love test" by fire. Below is Chas. W. Hitchcock, 45, Lake Bluff, Ill., policeman, elocution teacher and village Adonis, whom the girl said was the object of her spiritual love. Hitchcock is the father of four children and is pictured above with his daughter, Alpha.

RUSSIANS RELENT TOWARD BANISHED

LONDON, Nov. 2.—The Russian Soviet government has decided to be more lenient to Leon Trotsky, exiled leader, and other members of the "opposition" who were banished from the Communist party, it was disclosed from reliable sources today.

Trotsky, it was said, will be permitted soon to leave his present primitive place of exile in Turkestan, six miles from Moscow, and go to Soukhum in the Caucasus. Soukhum is an idyllic watering place resembling the Riviera and only three days from Moscow.

CURTIS NEARS END OF SPEAKING TOUR

DES MOINES, Ia., Nov. 2.—Senator Charles Curtis, Republican nominee for vice president, neared the end of his last bid for the farm vote today.

He left here for Moberly, Mo., where he will speak tonight. From there he goes to his home state for two last speeches before election, in Wichita and Topeka.

Speaking last night before 4,000 persons here Senator Curtis declared farmers may expect no relief if the Democratic ticket is elected.

DIES IN AUTOMOBILE

WARREN, Nov. 2.—Heart disease was attributed today as the cause of the death of Fred Hann, 27, of Akron, who died in his automobile while returning from a trip east.

HUGE RECEPTION IS PLANNED BY GOTHAM FOR "FAVORITE SON"

New York Will Out-Do Previous Affairs To Honor Smith.

NEW YORK, Nov. 2.—The boy who came up from the sidewalks of New York to become the presidential nominee of the Democratic party will ride down Broadway today like an emperor.

Plans have been made to give Gov. Alfred E. Smith the greatest of the great receptions this town has showered upon returning war heroes, aviators, kings and princes. The brown derby has been carefully brushed for the occasion which will climax the home town boy's 15,000 mile campaign parade over the nation, a march which witnessed riotous demonstrations by uncounted millions of persons.

The parade is to start at noon at the Battery, that tip of Manhattan Island where all the immigrants land. Through the canyon of skyscrapers on lower Broadway it is to proceed to the city hall where the governor's friend Mayor James J. Walker is to climb aboard. He will lead Smith's procession over its five mile Broadway route to Columbus Circle, through the wholesale clothing district, the department store colony and the theatrical area. At the famous cross streets of Forty-Second and Broadway, Times Square, the largest crowd is expected.

Every available policeman has been ordered into uniform to do duty along the route.

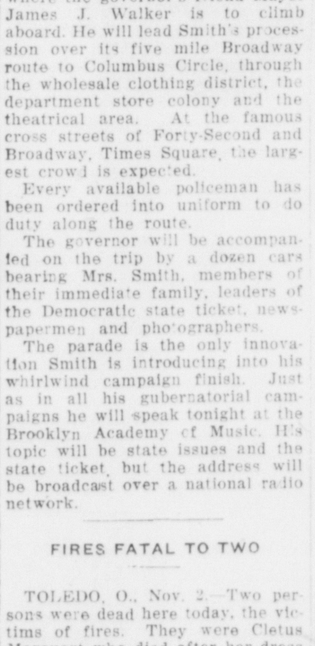

The governor will be accompanied on the trip by a dozen cars bearing Mrs. Smith, members of their immediate family, leaders of the Democratic state ticket, newspapermen and photographers.

The parade is the only innovation Smith is introducing into his whirlwind campaign finish. Just as in all his gubernatorial campaigns he will speak tonight at the Brooklyn Academy of Music. His topic will be state issues and the state ticket, but the address will be broadcast over a national radio network.

FIRES FATAL TO TWO

TOLEDO, O., Nov. 2.—Two persons were dead here today, the victims of fires. They were Cletus Marquart who died after her dress caught fire from a bathroom heater and Lewis French, 50, who was trapped and burned to death when his bedroom caught fire.

Italy's "Margot"

Italy's "Margot Asquith," Vittoria Colonna, Duchess of Sermoneta, who is engaged in writing her memoirs which Rome expects will cause as much discussion as Lady Asquith's did a few years ago, is planning a visit to the United States. She is to be the guest of Mary Pickford and Douglas Fairbanks in California.

NOEL MORRIS TAKES LIFE; TANNHAUSER PARALLEL BLAMED

Wealthy Son Of Antioch Trustee Shoots Himself.

NEW YORK, Nov. 2.—Noel Morris, member of one of America's oldest families and a direct descendant of Governor Bradford, the Pilgrim leader, is dead today—apparently nerved to the point of suicide by the stirring strains of Wagner's opera "Tannhauser."

Morris' body was found late yesterday behind locked doors in his luxurious apartment on Seventieth St., his hand clutching a revolver and a bullet through the head.

On a desk was found a neatly typed note, thrust between the pages of his diary. The note said:

"This is the closing entry. Tannhauser was not able to stick it out, but I am."

Police today reconstructed a strange story of how the young philosophy student returned from the opera Wednesday night where he had heard Maria Jeritza and Rudolff Laubenthal sing the principal roles in "Tannhauser."

Apparently Morris was not to attend to take his life when he first got back from the opera.

Morris had lain in bed brooding over the fate of "Tannhauser," the German knight who wandered over the world, arrived at the court of Venus, and gave himself up to wordly pleasure, only to return and make a pilgrimage to the Vatican to seek forgiveness.

Morris must have seen a parallel between his life and that Tannhauser of legend, because he arose, went into the bathroom and shot himself through the head.

Relatives could offer no explanation for the apparent suicide. They said he was in excellent health except for an injury to his right hand. He was said to have been in excellent spirits when he left for the opera. He recently had been employed as a research expert at the Russell Sage Foundation of Social Research.

Morris' mother, who was Adele Vanderbilt Shepard, is a great-granddaughter of Commodore Vanderbilt. His father, David H. Morris, is vice president of the St. Louis Southwestern Railway and a trustee of Antioch College, Yellow Springs, Ohio, where young Morris was educated.

An autopsy will be held today.

Morris attended Antioch College three years and left the school a year ago last June. He did not graduate from Antioch and seemed to have difficulty in adapting himself in school and making plans on the completion of his education, Antioch officials said Friday.

He was active on the campus, they say and seemed to have a cheery disposition with no visible indication of morbidity.

After leaving Antioch, he engaged in social service work in New York City.

POLITICS ON THE RADIO

NEW YORK, Nov. 2.—Nationwide networks will broadcast tonight's campaign addresses of Alfred E. Smith and Herbert Hoover. In addition, talks by Senator William E. Borah and Franklin D. Roosevelt, candidate for governor of New York, are to be heard over lesser chains of radio stations.

Roosevelt will be the first on the air. His address will be heard over WEAF, WGY and WGR from 8 to 9 p. m. Eastern time. The Cities Service hour which usually occupies this period will be broadcast over sixteen other stations of the N. B. C. red network.

Microphones will be set up for broadcasting Hoover's St. Louis speech at 9 p. m., Eastern time. The Republican candidate will speak for an hour over a network of thirty-five stations, including six on the Pacific Coast.

The chain will include WEAF, WGY and WSAI.

Smith will speak from the platform of the Brooklyn Academy of Music from 10 to 11 p. m. Eastern time. A coast-to-coast network has been arranged and the regular Friday night Democratic program on the N. B. C. network has been cancelled in order to permit broadcasting of the speech in full.

Listeners may hear Smith over WJZ, KDKA or WLW.

Speaking from Boston, Borah will be on the air from 10:30 to 11:30 p. m. Eastern time. A network of twelve stations will be used, including WEAF, and WGY.

Saturday night's political broadcasting on the big chaines will be principally Democratic. The rally in Madison Square Garden will be broadcast by a number of N. B. C. stations, with a coast-to-coast hookup.

At the conclusion of Smith's address in Madison Square Garden, individual stations on the network will broadcast talks by state and local Democratic candidates.

MRS. R. J. KYLE IS CLAIMED BY DEATH

Mrs. Nattie Haines Kyle, 69, wife of the Rev. R. J. Kyle, retired United Presbyterian minister, passed away at her home in Cedarville Thursday night at 9:30 o'clock. Death followed a year's illness, culminating in a stroke of paralysis suffered last Sunday.

The Rev. and Mrs. Kyle were both born in Greene County and were members of pioneer and prominent families of this locality. They resided for several years in Media, Ill., coming from there to Cedarville.

Mrs. Kyle was widely known and was an active member of the Cedarville U. P. Church.

Besides her husband, she leaves two daughter, Miss Eleanor Kyle, teacher at Rochester, N. Y., and Mrs. Dalton Galloway, who with her husband has been a missionary in Fayum, Egypt, but is now with him on a furlough in Monmouth, Ill., and one son, Ralph Kyle, of Monmouth, Ill.

Funeral services will be held Saturday at 2 o'clock at the Cedarville U. P. Church with burial in Massies Creek Cemetery.

ADDRESSES DOCTORS

Dr. C. G. McPherson was the speaker when the Greene County Medical Association held its November meeting Thursday morning in the office of Dr. R. H. Grube, Greene County health commissioner in the court house. His subject was "Immunizing Against Scarlet Fever."

"WORTH WEIGHT IN GOLD" SAYS LOCAL MAN OF KONJOLA

Loss Of Appetite Combined With Other Ailments Made Life Miserable; Now Enjoys Glorious Health.

It was predicted, when the Konjola Man first came to this city, that the people of Xenia would very quickly find out about the merits of this celebrated new medicine, Konjola, which he is introducing and explaining in person to large crowds each day at the Gallaher Drug Store, this city.

MR. E. P. PURDIN

Report after report is being received from men and women of this city, describing the remarkable benefits derived from the use of this surprising new compound. For instance, just the other day Mr. E. P. Purdin, No. 1, Hudson Avenue, Xenia, made the following statement about the work of Konjola in his case:

"Konjola is worth its weight in gold to me because it was only necessary to take two bottles to obtain permanent relief from all my health troubles," said Mr. Purdin.

"For more than seven years I suffered from a severe case of stomach trouble combined with weakened kidneys, sluggish liver and constipation. My health was in a very bad condition and I was at a loss to know what to do for relief because medicines had no more effect on me than so much water. It was necessary to rise two or three times a night because of frequent bladder action and my sleep became fitful so that I felt tired and worn-out the next morning. My bowels seldom moved without the aid of some strong laxative that really did more harm than good because they upset my stomach. Each morning I woke up with a bad taste in my mouth that no doubt came from the bile in my system which my liver refused to carry off. There were very few things that I was able to eat which digested right. Consequently I lost my appetite and really had to force myself to eat enough to nourish my body. Even at that I lost strength and energy until my work became a drudgery. It seemed to me that I always felt half-sick in my stomach. Life was far from being pleasant when in this unhealthy condition.

"I went to the Gallaher Drug Store one day and had a talk with the Konjola Man. Then I purchased two bottles of this new Konjola medicine and started taking it regularly. By the time the two weeks treatment was completed I was ready to give up the taking of medicines for all time to come. Konjola restored my stomach to healthy action so that I am able to eat whatever I wish without the reoccurence of a single symptom. My appetite returned and since I am getting the proper nutrition I have gained in strength and energy. The next thing this medicine did was to strengthen my kidneys so that I can sleep through the night without having to rise at all hours. Both my liver and bowels have been restored to perfect health and in every way I have been benefited. I advise every sufferer to give this medicine a fair trial because I know what it will do."

The Konjola Man is at the Gallaher Drug Store, this city, where he is meeting the public every day and introducing and explaining the merits of this medicine for the stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels or for rheumatism and neuritis.

DETAILS LEARNED OF KYLE-RITCHIE WEDDING

Mrs. T. D. Kyle, W. Church St., has returned home from Tacoma, Wash, where she attended the marriage of her son, Dr. Philip C. Kyle to Miss Helen Mae Ritchie, daughter of the Rev. and Mrs. W. F. Ritchie, Dash Point, Wash., October 10.

The ceremony was solemnized at the First United Presbyterian Church in the evening by the bride's father and the church pastor, the Rev. Hugh F. Given.

Palms and ferns with white chrysanthemums were arranged for the vows and above them were lighted tapers in tall candelabra.

As the guests awaited the bride's entrance, Mrs. James Eyre Macpherson sang "Until," and Mrs. Byron Goreman, who accompanied her, played the Lohengrin processional when the bride entered with her father and attendants. At the close of the service, Mrs. Macpherson sang "I Love You Truly."

The bride's wedding gown was of white taffeta, fashioned in period mode, with bouffant skirt of graduated length and fitted bodice with long sleeves. The frock was untrimmed but her veil of white tulle was bordered in sheer lace and caught with bouvardia blossoms. She carried ophelia rose buds in a shower bouquet, combined with small white chrysanthemums and bouvardia.

Miss Lisle Macomber, the bride's maid, wore pink georgette and a matching picture hat. Her flowers were pink rosebuds in an arm bouquet. The flower girl, Betty Overturf, was in a peach colored frock and carried a basket of flowers.

The best man was Dr. G. C. Kohl, a fellow interne of Dr. Kyle at the Tacoma General Hospital and the ushers were Drs. Neithammer and Ritchie, a cousin of the bride.

A reception after the ceremony was held in the church assembly room, which was decorated with flowers and foliage. Appointments for the collation carried the colors of green and white, and the ices repeated the motif in wedding bells.

Dr. and Mrs. Kyle took a motor honeymoon trip and since their return to Tacoma have been residing in the Exeter apartments.

MRS. GEYER HEARD BY CEDRINE MEMBERS

Twenty-four members of the Cedrine Club and six visitors were entertained by Miss Flora Nisbet and Mrs. David McElroy at the home of Miss Nisbet, W. Market St., on Thursday afternoon.

The responses to roll call were in harmony with the November motto of the club, "For law, have hope, faith, love, obedience and reverence."

The program committee, Miss Nisbet and Mrs. F. A. Jackson, provided an interesting and profitable hour for all present by obtaining Mrs. Carrie D. Geyer to give one of her delightful and instructive talks on her experiences during the three years she spent in China as teacher of English in a mission school and as a tutor of teachers in the government school.

Mrs. Geyer illustrated her talk with numerous souvenirs. The club made a donation of five dollars toward missionary work in China, after Mrs. Geyer's talk.

Delicious refreshments were served and a social period enjoyed.

Mrs. T. D. Kyle who attended the marriage of her son, Dr. Phillip Kyle, at Tacoma, Wash., October 10, has returned home after visiting in California, New Mexico and other points, enroute east.

OVERCOME BY GAS FUMES FROM TRUCK

James M. Cummings, who recently purchased the Lang Transfer Line, and an employe, Clarence Williamson, narrowly escaped being overcome by monoxide gas while hauling the household effects of the Rev. D. A. Sellers, from Xenia to Robertsville, O., Tuesday.

They were riding in the closed cabin of the moving van, and fumes from the motor made them both ill. They noted their danger in time to open the cabin and prevent more serious effects. They soon recovered from the attack.

XENIA STORE UNIT OF BUTCHER CHAIN

The Central Meat Market, 42 E. Main St., has come under the control of the Union Meat Co., Inc., organized last week.

J. H. Mason, who has been manager of the local store, is president of the new company. The firm is operating a store in London and expects to open several other meat shops in this part of the state.

OVERCOME BY GAS FUMES FROM TRUCK

James M. Cummings, who recently purchased the Lang Transfer Line, and an employe, Clarence Williamson, narrowly escaped being overcome by monoxide gas while hauling the household effects of the Rev. D. A. Sellers, from Xenia to Robertsville, O., Tuesday.

They were riding in the closed cabin of the moving van, and fumes from the motor made them both ill. They noted their danger in time to open the cabin and prevent more serious effects. They soon recovered from the attack.

BIBLE THOUGHT FOR TODAY

THE SONG OF VICTORY—The Lord is exalted; for he dwelleth on high: he hath filled Zion with judgment and righteousness.—Isa. 33:5.

A DEMOCRATIC ESTIMATE OF HOOVER

During the Wilson administration Walter H. Page was American Ambassador at the Court of St. James. It is interesting to know what this prominent Democrat wrote to President Wilson regarding Hoover and his work.

The following will be found in Volume 3 of the Life and Letters of Walter H. Page, page 312.

December 30, 1916. Written not for the sake of the gentleman mentioned but for possible help to the President and the service:

HOOVER: Mr. Herbert C. Hoover, Chairman of the Commission for Relief in Belgium, would, if opportunity should offer, make a useful officer in the State Department. He is probably the only man living, who has privately (without holding office) negotiated understandings with the British, French, Dutch and Belgian Governments. He personally knows and has had direct dealings with these governments and his transactions with them have involved several hundred millions dollars. He is a man of very considerable fortune—less than when the work began, for this Relief Work has cost him much. He was approached on behalf of the British Government with the suggestion that if he would become a British subject the government would be pleased to give him an important executive post and with the hint that if he succeeded a title might await him. His answer was: "I will do what I can for you with pleasure but I will be damned if I give up my American citizenship. Not on your life!" Within the last six months two large financial organizations, each independently, have offered him one hundred thousand dollars a year to enter their service and an industrial company offered him one hundred thousand dollars (to start with). He declined them all. When the Belgian Relief Work recently struck a snag Hoover by telegraph got the promise of a loan in the United States for the British and French Governments for the Belgian Relief of $150,000,000! I do not know but I think he would be glad to turn his European experience to the patriotic use of our own government. He is 42 years old and is a graduate of the Leland Stanford University.

NOISE AND NERVES

The city of New York has begun a campaign under a law which makes unlawful the unnecessary blowing "of horns and the use of horns and other sound-making devices that are unnecessarily loud or harsh," and thus inaugurates what may be a national crusade. Let us at least hope so.

In the early days of automobiles, when the world was in the horse and buggy age, a horn was an absolute essential. Today, in most cases, it is used by drivers in lieu of brakes and thus it is not only annoying but often extremely dangerous.

It is predicted that automobiles will some day be fueled by alcohol. Some of them appear to be steered by alcohol already.

The Way of the World

By GROVE PATTERSON

TRUTH

A poet, unknown to the writer of this column, once set down these lines:

"I stood one eve beside a blacksmith's door,
And heard the anvil ring the vespers' chime;
Then, looking in, I saw upon the floor
Old hammers, worn with heating years of time.
'How many anvils have you had,' said I,
'To wear and batter all those hammers so?"
'Just one,' said he, then said, with twinkling eye,
'The anvil wears the hammers out, you know'."

We may strike at truth, deny it, and seek to destroy it. We may go on all our lives opposing men and principles who are in the right. We cannot break the men or wear down the principles—so long as they are really true. They are, indeed, like the anvils which in time must wear the hammers out.

* * *

LIVING THOUGHTFULLY

The study of the universe, the ordered movement of the planets, the observation of all the carefully prepared and arranged processes of nature should lead us into the practice of living thoughtful lives. When we perceive that nature is ruled by a creative force and ruled in an orderly manner, what excuse can we have for living lives of chaotic disarrangement and thoughtfulness.

* * *

AN IDEA

More powerful than the tread of marching armies, said Victor Hugo, is an idea whose hour has come. But the great Frenchman would have admitted the futility and the weakness of an idea in the mind of a man or woman suffering from the commonest malady of modern times—mental indolence. Without energy ideas are beautiful pictures packed away in the attic.

* * *

POPULARITY

People who are exceedingly popular doubtless find it pleasant to be so. But one can pay too high a price for popularity, and when he has paid it he will find that he has lost what he thought that he had bought. Many seek popularity by agreeing with everybody about everything. They at first get a reputation for tolerance, and then it is discovered that they do not deserve a reputation for tolerance. They simply have no convictions. Very likely they are ignorant and do not know what they are agreeing with. Better be unpopular and stand for something than to be an easy push-over in every debate.

Tolerance doesn't mean agreeing with the other fellow on everything. It means respecting his opinion without unjust condemnation. It means giving him the assumption of sincerity and trying to see things from his point of view as well as your own. Tolerance does not mean giving up your own thoughtful convictions—if any.

The Diary of a New Yorker

By CLARK KINNAIRD

NEW YORK.—Emil Gauvreau is editor of the tabloid Graphic. It's brief and snappy. Maybe that's why he hits the nail on the head. Well, anyway, he's a scrapping editor.

He is aroused because Maurice E. Connolly, sentenced to a year in the penitentiary for conspiring to defraud the Borough of Queens, of which he was president, of millions of dollars, is released on bail. And "his gang"—as Gauvreau says is betting 10 to 1 he never will have to pass a day in jail. But a fellow, 55 years old, arrested for stealing $7.50, is sentenced to life in prison under the Baumes law. (A law making life mandatory for fourth offenders).

Alvin Tyminski, 10, can smile only on one side of his face now, since a truck ran him down; his father, therefore, brought suit for $50.000.

I counted the names of sixteen theaters darkened on the ticket agency boards. Unusual for this time of year. "What's to become of the spoken play?" Broadway asks gloomily. Write better plays.

No. 1 Wall street is to have a 44-story building. (That height doesn't mean much in New York.) The American Exchange Irving Trust Co. is to erect the structure on this site, which, being across from Trinity church, is the first view tourists usually have of Wall street.

A 40-story hotel is to go up at Sixth avenue, 58th street and Central Park West. This region aorund the south end of Central park has become approximately the chief exclusive hotel center.

A friend of mine took a small car to a garage. Going back the following morning, he was informed it was lost. It was found in an hour. But that is as nothing to the messenger boy sent on an important mission by a firm. The messenger boy was swallowed up in the depths of New York for hours. Wonder how many persons disappear here each day?

Movie officials are not entirely happy over talking movies. They present complications in foreign lands. Needless to say, the French won't put up with Eiglish—and even the British object to Hollywood dialect.

Rumor has it that John J. Raskob, Democratic national chairman, will not return to General Motors. A multi-millionaire, through his holding in General Motors, he was chairman of the finance committee of that huge corporation. His estate is near Wilmington, Del., but, of course, he's in New York much of the time. He has predicted that stocks will be deflated.

A hot bowl of vegetable soup makes a fine luncheon dish for the children in cold weather. It may be made with meat stock as a foundation and little sections of very well cooked meat floating in it, o rthe vegetables may be cooked in milk. Quantities in recipe are for four.

Today's Recipes

Vegetable Soup—One and one-half pounds neck beef, one soup bone, one large can of tomatoes, four medium sized potatoes, four carrots (one bunch), one bunch celery, four medium onions, two turnips (white), one small bunch parsley, three tablespoons barley, seasoning. Wash meat and bone and place in a large kettle. Cover with cold water and add one tablespoon salt. Allow it to simmer slowly all day. Let it stand in a cool place all night. In the morning remove all the meat and bone and some of the hardened fat if there is a great deal of fat. Then add the vegetables which have been washed and diced, and the barley. Season to taste. Allow it to cook slowly until lunch time.

Grape and Apple Salad — One-half pound California grapes, three apples, celery, chopped nut meats, lettuce and mayonnaise dressing. Wash and halve the grapes, removing the seeds. Pare and dice the apples. Wash the celery and cut it very fine. Add the chopped nuts and mix with the dressnig. Place on lettuce leaf. Whipped cream may be added on top.

Suggestions

Accordion pleated chintz shades are pretty and go well with lamps having pottery bases. Gold and silver lace shades are novelties. They are usually conventional in shape and go well with china or porcelain bases.

THE LIVEST DEAD MAN WE EVER SAW

Behind the Scenes in Washington

By CHARLES P. STEWART

WASHINGTON—All tong wars are mysteries to the Caucasian race.

Every now and then an epidemic of killings breaks out among America's Chinese, usually in the Chinatowns of several cities at once—frequently far apart. Evidently there is some sort of system about it.

When this happens the police talk glibly of warfare between two tongs'—even naming the tongs.

In the government immigration service are experts who will testify that such talk is pure bluff—that it is doubtful if any white man really can define a "tong," much less explain a tong war.

Some students of the subject think a tong, in America, is a branch of a bigger, main tong in China. Others believe that, like chop suey, the tong is an invention of the Chinese here—quite unknown to their brethren at home.

Perhaps the best guess is that the strife which rages periodically in American Chinatowns simply is racketeering, in its Chinese form.

Be that as it may, its mortality rate is high.

It is also a pest—not that the tong gunmen do not try to confine their activities to their own countrymen, but from the danger of stray shots—and from the general disorderliness of tong warfare, besides.

So every time there is a tong outbreak—as recently, in Washington, New York, Chicago and elsewhere—up goes a yell for the immigration authorities to get busy, to weed out the Chinese who are in the United States illegally, and to deport them overseas.

Easy enough to demand!—rejoin the immigration authorities—but mighty difficult to go ahead and do.

It may not appear so hard. The oriental cast of countenance is not to be missed, mistaken or disguised. And a Chinese, from China, is subject to deportation unless he has credentials to show. But suppose he was born here!

Theoretically, Chinese immigration into the United States has been prohibited since the early 80's. However, at first there were a good many exemptions and a considerable enfilteration continued for a number of years.

Gradually the law was strengthened until it began to look air tight.

At that point the Chinese, once in the country, bethought themselves of the expedient, whenever questioned of claiming American citizenship.

There actually were then in America quite a few young people of Chinese parentage but American birth. There are more now—and grandchildren.

In law they are as American as the pilgrims' progeny.

It would seem as if they must have become pretty thorough Americans in other respects, too—but not so much as one might imagine, the immigration folk say—the Chinese, even in America, keep so much to themselves that it is possible for a family of them to live here on into the generations and stay very Chinese—especially if each generation is sent to the home land to grow up.

How to Achieve Beauty

By MME. HELENA RUBINSTEIN

BEAUTY BUILDS A HOUSE
Plans and Specifications for Beauty's House

It certainly does sound technical. In fact, now that I have actually found my title, I am distressed by its very magnitude. For I must admit that the sight of a blue print turns me pale!

However, without delving into double constructions and weather-proof insulation, let me see how I can help along the contractor — and — infinitely more important, the mistress of the house whom I most sincerely hope will be her own decorator.

Beauty's house must be livable — it must be built for comfort—for utility, for long and loving service, and above all else, for the birth and development of a soul.

For houses do have souls. I absolutely insist upon it. Even rooms have souls. For instance, in my new London salon—there is the soul of a very smart, slightly superior sophisticate, who charms and intrigues and who demands, if you please, a complete respect. In my own apartment there is one room that smiles to me—hauntingly lovely, softly mysterious—a room to intrigue but not to dream in. In another room you will meet the spirit of ageless beauty—furniture faintly redolent of lavender and rosemary; sweetly reminiscent of the dreamy beauty of an old love song.

So before we plan our house, or even our own room, let us stop just for a moment and think of types and personalities. First of all — what are you — what do you do and what do you like? Life is a whirlpool of contradiction — and unless I'm much mistaken, you may be very sure that when you attempt to bring your personality down to specification you will find a thousand and one loose ends to your character. For example, right here in my New York salon there is a girl of Oriental extraction. To the outward eye she is a business woman with a quick brain and busy hands; her office is severely plain. Not even a flower nods frivolously from her desk—and yet I have seen her standing before my great Indian shawl with her heart in her eyes and all the beauty-loving blood of her ancestors rebelling against tailor-made and modern existence. If I could—and if she could, I would say to her, "Compromise with life! You cannot have the warm winds and the golden sand of another world. You cannot hang great ropes of barbaric stones on your neck—you cannot strip the stiff garments of vivilization from your body—but you can build yourself an oasis. In your own room you can fill your eye and your heart and your soul with the beauty you want and need. Why not do it? Why toss nightly on a four-poster bed when you would rest peacefully on a low divan? Why force your personality into shintz specifications when you can, for the same money, buy gold and amethyst and wine-colored draperies? Why have your room finished in a neutral, primly prudent paper, when for a few dollars more you can demand a Moorish stucco effect that will prove both unusual and effective? Work by the day we all must—and it is good for us—but dream and relax and be happy at night. Life will be doubly rich, and you will blossom just as a flower does when it is brought to its own natural habitat after long years in harsh and foreign soil."

Kellygrams

By FRED C. KELLY

At this time of year I devote considerable time to feeling sorry for little boys—and girls, too—who are obliged to go to school. Is there any book so uniformly dull as a schoolbook? No matter how fascinating may be the possibilities of the subject, the author of a textbook always contrives to make it intensely unentertaining Not even an adult can keep interested in a schoolbook clear to the end. Yet we scold innocent children because their books fail to interest them.

My friend, Sid Lenz, one of the best whist players in the world, once confided to me that while without superstitions and not believing in the slightest degree that there is any advantage in occupying the chair just vacated by a winner, yet he always tries to get that winning seat.

"So many men do believe in lucky numbers and lucky seats," he explained, "that I take it to keep the other fellow from getting it. If I have the winning chair, the chap who would like to have it thinks I'm almost sure to beat him. So long as he feels that way I probably will beat him. I've raised my own morale by lowering his."

SURE PROOF.

Young Cyril had been asked out to tea, and during the conversation he remarked that he was afraid it would be his last visit, because he thought they were going to move.

"But what makes you so sure your mother is going to move, Cyril?" asked his hostess. "She hasn't mentioned the matter to me."

"Ah," returned Cyril, "but you see, I scratched the banister several times yesterday and Mamma never said anything."

Planked Fish

(Mrs. Mary Morton's Daily Tested Recipe)

Clean and bone fish and arange on a buttered plank. Sprinkle with salt and pepper, spread with butter and bake until done, half an hour or so, depending on the size and kind of fish. Garnish with mashed potatoes squeezed through a pastry tube, or with shoe-string potatoes, sprinkle with finely chopped parsley, and between the potatoes put slices of cucumber and tomato, or lemon slices. Serve from plank.

Diet and Health

By LULU HUNT PETERS M. D.
Author of "Diet and Health" and "Diet For Children"

NORMAL TEMPERATURES VERY SLIGHTLY DURING THE DAY
Normal Temperature Variation.

"My trouble is that I always carry a fever of 99 degrees between 4 and 6 in the afternoon. Is there any danger in that? I eat well and feel well and am not underweight. I am 26 years old, 5 ft. 1 inch tall and weigh 121 pounds. My bowels do not move regularly. "S."

My dear S., if you never have worse trouble than four-tenths of a degree above 98.6, between 4 and 6 in the afternoon, you will be fortunate, for the normal temperature varies between 98 and 99 and the highest period is between 4 and 6 in the afternoon. The lowest is around 3 in the morning, unless you reverse your habits and sleep in the daytime and work at night.

If you had any symptoms with the little increase in temperature, then you might be concerned, for that would mean a little toxemia or poisoning.

According to the rule of 110 pounds for 5 ft. in height, in stocking feet, and 5½ pounds for each inch over that, you are about five pounds overweight. That may be right for you or it may indicate that you are eating too many starches and sugars and fats, and that might account for your bowels being so sluggish. You should take more fruits and vegetables and less starches and sugars and oils.

Don't be taking your temperature all the time, S., unless you have symptoms. You don't want to become a neurotic. Go for a physical examination once a year and then obey the hygienic rules, and stop worrying about yourself. While it is exceedingly wise to take symptoms in hand before any serious inroad is made, you must not be too introspective.

We have an article on Constipation and one on Balanced Diet which you may have.

Pipe Organ Development

"I play the pipe organ. I have played it for a year now and have practiced two and three hours a day all this time. Several people have told me that I'll have thick ankles because in pedaling the muscles of the ankles are exercised and will enlarge. Is this so? I am quite young, just 19 the other day, so I'd hate to have big, thick ankles. Of course, one does exercise the ankles a great deal in playing, and besides I play pedal exercises about a half hour daily. I do wish you would publish an answer to this, as my whole family have had many arguments over the matter. "L"

Around the ankles are tendons of the leg and foot muscles bound down by a strong sheath. While these will be strengthened they do not enlarge as muscles do, so I don't believe that you have any cause to worry, L.

If you are going to make a career of organ playing, even if the ankles were more developed, you are not going to let this interfere, are you?

Over-Emotionalism

J.—I wouldn't say that a person who is inclined to weep a bit when a sad piece of music or a sad play is heard, is over-emotional. If that were true, a lot of us would be so rated, including yours sincerely. Of course, if this tendency is marked it is a case of over-emotionalism and probably indicates a weakened nervous system from some cause—either from inheritance or some infringement of the hygienic laws.

There are many good books on the subject of nervousness that you can get in the library, which might be of help to you.

Living and Loving

By MRS. VIRGINIA LEE

Composed Of Alien Races, America Snubs "Foreigners"

Isn't it odd that America, the "land of the free," composed of members of many alien races, is the most snobbish of all the peoples of earth? "Foreigner" is a term of reproach with us, and yet pray what are we all? Our "oldest families" date back but a few generations.

"Dear Mrs. Lee: Will you kindly advise me what to do? I am a girl 21 years old and in love with a boy three years older. I am German and he is French-Italian. My dad don't care to have me go with him because he is Italian. I have been going with him for almost three years. Mrs. Lee, would you advise a German girl to marry an Italian boy? WONDERING BOBBLES."

I would advise a German girl, or a girl of any other nationality, to marry a man she can love and honor, regardless of his nationailty. We are all Americans you know. Character counts, nothing else.

"My Dear Mrs. Lee: I have been going with a fellow for about a year and a half until just lately. He thinks I now love another fellow and tells my girl friend that I don't love him any more. Now he goes out with a girl whose reputation is anything but good. How may I win his love and confidence again? Would it injure my reputation any to go with him after he has been going with this other girl? RUSTY."

It sounds a bit peculiar that he has given you up and is going with another girl because he thinks you love another, but if it is true, and you know he still likes you, there is no harm in writing him and telling him so. Be sure it is so, however. No your reputation would not be harmed by going with him again.

"Dear Mrs. Lee: I have been writing to a young man who lives in a distant city. He wants to marry this month. I won't marry for several years. My parents think I am too young to marry now. He said we could keep on writing until spring. Then he would motor out here and see me. If I wanted to marry then I could do so. Please advise me. Answer soon.
"LONESOME H. C."

You don't say how old you are, I think I would do as he says. Continue corresponding until spring, then when he comes to see you you can talk the matter over with your parents.

Lonesome M.: Yes, indeed, people do write in again quite often, and I am always glad to have them do so. Yours certainly is a puzzling case. I wish you could move away from the town and start afresh, making friends away from the first wife's influence. That would simplify your problem. Isn't there one person of influence in the town that you could confide in who could take your part and be your friend? If just one such person could be found, others would follow their example. Write me again, and maybe between us we will be able to work something out. It is, as you say, hard for me to understand such a condition.

Peter's Adventure

By MRS. FLORENCE SMITH VINCENT

A COUNTRY THAT'S CRUEL TO A STRANGER

"Of course Golden-Collar chuckled and told his lady love that she could have exactly the sort of front porch she pleased.

"'But,' he continued, 'now that we have settled our own affairs will you tell me where you came from, what you were doing so far away from home and who were those funny fat Two-Legs that were chasing you when first I set eyes upon you?'

"Susan Straw-Neck, nestling close beside him, explained matters.

"'I was out feeding with the flock this afternoon, but I had eaten so much in the morning that I was really not a bit hungry, so I stopped to rest by the side of the loveliest pool. At last I could stand it no longer, I must take a dip.

"'So in I hopped and waded around to my heart's content, and I let the water cover me up to the very tip of my wings. It was so delightfully cool there that I quite forgot the rest of the flock and suddenly I looked for them, only to find that there was not a bird in sight.

"'Where in the world had they gone to? I had been so busy bathing that I had not even noticed in what direction this flock had flown! Was it north, east, south or west?

"'You have seen for yourself what a strange country this is. For a distance the land is flat as a flounder and then a hill will hide the trees and sky from your sight. But when you have crossed the hill once more are the plains spread out before you.

"'And everywhere there is low brush, beyond which you cannot see. In places it is very deep and dreadful things live there; in others only a few clumps of low, thick trees cluster together.

"'This is Australia, you know, one of the greatest countries in the world. But out here on the plains a bird has to keep his eyes and his ears open and his senses about him to know where he is or something is liable to happen.

"'And that is just what I did not do—keep my wits about me. I had been so interested in having a good time thatt I had let my family get out of my sight and without having the least idea where they were going.

"THE REST OF THE BIRDS FLEW OFF LEAVING HER ALONE."

"'I called and called, but not a bird answered. Then I started to follow, but not knowing which way they had gone, I must have taken the wrong turn. Anyhow not a sign of the flock did I find—not even their footprints in the damp ground'."

BIBLE THOUGHT FOR TODAY

THE SONG OF VICTORY—The Lord is exalted; for he dwelleth on high: he hath filled Zion with judgment and righteousness.—Isa. 33:5.

A DEMOCRATIC ESTIMATE OF HOOVER

During the Wilson administration Walter H. Page was American Ambassador at the Court of St. James. It is interesting to know what this prominent Democrat wrote to President Wilson regarding Hoover and his work.

The following will be found in Volume 3 of the Life and Letters of Walter H. Page, page 312.

December 30, 1916. Written not for the sake of the gentleman mentioned but for possible help to the President and the service:

HOOVER: Mr. Herbert C. Hoover, Chairman of the Commission for Relief in Belgium, would, if opportunity should offer, make a useful officer in the State Department. He is probably the only man living, who has privately (without holding office) negotiated understandings with the British, French, Dutch and Belgian Governments. He personally knows and has had direct dealings with these governments and his transactions with them have involved several hundred millions dollars. He is a man of very considerable fortune—less than when the work began, for this Relief Work has cost him much. He was approached on behalf of the British Government with the suggestion that if he would become a British subject the government would be pleased to give him an important executive post and with the hint that if he succeeded a title might await him. His answer was: "I will do what I can for you with pleasure but I will be damned if I give up my American citizenship. Not on your life!" Within the last six months two large financial organizations, each independently, have offered him one hundred thousand dollars a year to enter their service and an industrial company offered him one hundred thousand dollars (to start with). He declined them all. When the Belgian Relief Work recently struck a snag Hoover by telegraph got the promise of a loan in the United States for the British and French Governments for the Belgian Relief of $150,000,000! I do not know but I think he would be glad to turn his European experience to the patriotic use of our own government. He is 42 years old and is a graduate of the Leland Stanford University.

NOISE AND NERVES

The city of New York has begun a campaign under a law which makes unlawful the unnecessary blowing "of horns and the use of horns and other sound-making devices that are unnecessarily loud or harsh," and thus inaugurates what may be a national crusade. Let us at least hope so.

In the early days of automobiles, when the world was in the horse and buggy age, a horn was an absolute essential. Today, in most cases, it is used by drivers in lieu of brakes and thus it is not only annoying but often extremely dangerous.

It is predicted that automobiles will some day be fueled by alcohol. Some of them appear to be steered by alcohol already.

The Way of the World

By GROVE PATTERSON

TRUTH

A poet, unknown to the writer of this column, once set down these lines:

"I stood one eve beside a blacksmith's door,
And heard the anvil ring the vespers' chime;
Then, looking in, I saw upon the floor
Old hammers, worn with heating years of time.
'How many anvils have you had,' said I.
'To wear and batter all those hammers so?"
'Just one,' said he, then said, with twinkling eye,
'The anvil wears the hammers out, you know'."

We may strike at truth, deny it, and seek to destroy it. We may go on all our lives opposing men and principles who are in the right. We cannot break the men or wear down the principles—so long as they are really true. They are, indeed, like the anvils which in time must wear the hammers out.

* * *

LIVING THOUGHTFULLY

The study of the universe, the ordered movement of the planets, the observation of all the carefully prepared and arranged processes of nature should lead us into the practice of living thoughtful lives. When we perceive that nature is ruled by a creative force and ruled in an orderly manner, what excuse can we have for living lives of chaotic disarrangement and thoughtfulness.

* * *

AN IDEA

More powerful than the tread of marching armies, said Victor Hugo, is an idea whose hour has come. But the great Frenchman would have admitted the futility and the weakness of an idea in the mind of a man or woman suffering from the commonest malady of modern times—mental indolence. Without energy ideas are beautiful pictures packed away in the attic.

* * *

POPULARITY

People who are exceedingly popular doubtless find it pleasant to be so. But one can pay too high a price for popularity, and when he has paid it he will find that he has lost what he thought that he had bought. Many seek popularity by agreeing with everybody about everything. They at first get a reputation for tolerance, and then it is discovered that they do not deserve a reputation for tolerance. They simply have no convictions. Very likely they are ignorant and do not know what they are agreeing with. Better be unpopular and stand for something than to be an easy push-over in every debate.

Tolerance doesn't mean agreeing with the other fellow on everything. It means respecting his opinion without unjust condemnation. It means giving him the assumption of sincerity and trying to see things from his point of view as well as your own. Tolerance does not mean giving up your own thoughtful convictions—if any.

The Diary of a New Yorker

By CLARK KINNAIRD

NEW YORK.—Emil Gauvreau is editor of the tabloid Graphic. It's brief and snappy. Maybe that's why he hits the nail on the head. Well, anyway, he's a scrapping editor.

He is aroused because Maurice E. Connolly, sentenced to a year in the penitentiary for conspiring to defraud the Borough of Queens, of which he was president, of millions of dollars, is released on bail. And "his gang"—as Gauvreau says is betting 10 to 1 he never will have to pass a day in jail. But a fellow, 55 years old, arrested for stealing $7.50, is sentenced to life in prison under the Baumes law. (A law making life mandatory for fourth offenders).

Alvin Tyminski, 10, can smile only on one side of his face now, since a truck ran him down; his father, therefore, brought suit for $50.000.

I counted the names of sixteen theaters darkened on the ticket agency boards. Unusual for this time of year. "What's to become of the spoken play?" Broadway asks gloomily. Write better plays.

No. 1 Wall street is to have a 44-story building. (That height doesn't mean much in New York.) The American Exchange Irving Trust Co. is to erect the structure on this site, which, being across from Trinity church, is the first view tourists usually have of Wall street.

A 40-story hotel is to go up at Sixth avenue, 58th street and Central Park West. This region aorund the south end of Central park has become approximately the chief exclusive hotel center.

A friend of mine took a small car to a garage. Going back the following morning, he was informed it was lost. It was found in an hour. But that is as nothing to the messenger boy sent on an important mission by a firm. The messenger boy was swallowed up in the depths of New York for hours. Wonder how many persons disappear here each day?

Movie officials are not entirely happy over talking movies. They present complications in foreign lands. Needless to say, the French won't put up with Eiglish—and even the British object to Hollywood dialect.

Rumor has it that John J. Raskob, Democratic national chairman, will not return to General Motors. A multi-millionaire, through his holding in General Motors, he was chairman of the finance committee of that huge corporation. His estate is near Wilmington, Del., but, of course, he's in New York much of the time. He has predicted that stocks will be deflated.

A hot bowl of vegetable soup makes a fine luncheon dish for the children in cold weather. It may be made with meat stock as a foundation and little sections of very well cooked meat floating in it, o rthe vegetables may be cooked in milk. Quantities in recipe are for four.

Today's Recipes

Vegetable Soup—One and one-half pounds neck beef, one soup bone, one large can of tomatoes, four medium sized potatoes, four carrots (one bunch), one bunch celery, four medium onions, two turnips (white), one small bunch parsley, three tablespoons barley, seasoning. Wash meat and bone and place in a large kettle. Cover with cold water and add one tablespoon salt. Allow it to simmer slowly all day. Let it stand in a cool place all night. In the morning remove all the meat and bone and some of the hardened fat if there is a great deal of fat. Then add the vegetables which have been washed and diced, and the barley. Season to taste. Allow it to cook slowly until lunch time.

Grape and Apple Salad — One-half pound California grapes, three apples, celery, chopped nut meats, lettuce and mayonnaise dressing. Wash and halve the grapes, removing the seeds. Pare and dice the apples. Wash the celery and cut it very fine. Add the chopped nuts and mix with the dressnig. Place on lettuce leaf. Whipped cream may be added on top.

Suggestions

Accordion pleated chintz shades are pretty and go well with lamps having pottery bases. Gold and silver lace shades are novelties. They are usually conventional in shape and go well with china or porcelain bases.

THE LIVEST DEAD MAN WE EVER SAW

Behind the Scenes in Washington

By CHARLES P. STEWART

WASHINGTON—All tong wars are mysteries to the Caucasian race.

Every now and then an epidemic of killings breaks out among America's Chinese, usually in the Chinatowns of several cities at once—frequently far apart. Evidently there is some sort of system about it.

When this happens the police talk glibly of warfare between two tongs'—even naming the tongs.

In the government immigration service are experts who will testify that such talk is pure bluff—that it is doubtful if any white man really can define a "tong," much less explain a tong war.

Some students of the subject think a tong, in America, is a branch of a bigger, main tong in China. Others believe that, like chop suey, the tong is an invention of the Chinese here—quite unknown to their brethren at home.

Perhaps the best guess is that the strife which rages periodically in American Chinatowns simply is racketeering, in its Chinese form.

Be that as it may, its mortality rate is high.

It is also a pest—not that the tong gunmen do not try to confine their activities to their own countrymen, but from the danger of stray shots—and from the general disorderliness of tong warfare, besides.

So every time there is a tong outbreak—as recently, in Washington, New York, Chicago and elsewhere—up goes a yell for the immigration authorities to get busy, to weed out the Chinese who are in the United States illegally, and to deport them overseas.

Easy enough to demand!—rejoin the immigration authorities—but mighty difficult to go ahead and do.

It may not appear so hard. The oriental cast of countenance is not to be missed, mistaken or disguised. And a Chinese, from China, is subject to deportation unless he has credentials to show.

But suppose he was born here!

Theoretically, Chinese immigration into the United States has been prohibited since the early 80's. However, at first there were a good many exemptions and a considerable enfilteration continued for a number of years.

Gradually the law was strengthened until it began to look air tight.

At that point the Chinese, once in the country, bethought themselves of the expedient, whenever questioned of claiming American citizenship.

There actually were then in America quite a few young people of Chinese parentage but American birth. There are more now—and grandchildren.

In law they are as American as the pilgrims' progeny.

It would seem as if they must have become pretty thorough Americans in other respects, too—but not so much as one might imagine, the immigration folk say—the Chinese, even in America, keep so much to themselves that it is possible for a family of them to live here on into the generations and stay very Chinese—especially if each generation is sent to the home land to grow up.

How to Achieve Beauty

By MME. HELENA RUBINSTEIN

BEAUTY BUILDS A HOUSE
Plans and Specifications for Beauty's House

It certainly does sound technical. In fact, now that I have actually found my title, I am distressed by its very magnitude. For I must admit that the sight of a blue print turns me pale!

However, without delving into double constructions and weather-proof insulation, let me see how I can help along the contractor — and — infinitely more important, the mistress of the house whom I most sincerely hope will be her own decorator.

Beauty's house must be livable—it must be built for comfort—for utility, for long and loving service, and above all else, for the birth and development of a soul.

For houses do have souls. I absolutely insist upon it. Even rooms have souls. For instance, in my new London salon—there is the soul of a very smart, slightly superior sophisticate, who charms and intrigues and who demands, if you please, a complete respect. In my own apartment there is one room that smiles to me—hauntingly lovely, softly mysterious—a room to intrigue but not to dream in. In another room you will meet the spirit of ageless beauty—furniture faintly redolent of lavender and rosemary; sweetly reminiscent of the dreamy beauty of an old love song.

So before we plan our house, or even our own room, let us stop just for a moment and think of types and personalities. First of all — what are you — what do you do and what do you like? Life is a whirlpool of contradiction — and unless I'm much mistaken, you may be very sure that when you attempt to bring your personality down to specification you will find a thousand and one loose ends to your character. For example, right here in my New York salon there is a girl of Oriental extraction. To the outward eye she is a business woman with a quick brain and busy hands; her office is severely plain. Not even a flower nods frivolously from her desk—and yet I have seen her standing before my great Indian shawl with her heart in her eyes and all the beauty-loving blood of her ancestors rebelling against tailor-made and modern existence. If I could—and if she could, I would say to her, "Compromise with life! You cannot have the warm winds and the golden sand of another world. You cannot hang great ropes of barbaric stones on your neck—you cannot strip the stiff garments of vivilization from your body—but you can build yourself an oasis. In your own room you can fill your eye and your heart and your soul with the beauty you want and need. Why not do it? Why toss nightly on a four-poster bed when you would rest peacefully on a low divan? Why force your personality into shintz specifications when you can, for the same money, buy gold and amethyst and wine-colored draperies? Why have your room finished in a neutral, primly prudent paper, when for a few dollars more you can demand a Moorish stucco effect that will prove both unusual and effective? Work by the day we all must—and it is good for us—but dream and relax and be happy at night. Life will be doubly rich, and you will blossom just as a flower does when it is brought to its own natural habitat after long years in harsh and foreign soil."

Kellygrams

By FRED C. KELLY

At this time of year I devote considerable time to feeling sorry for little boys—and girls, too—who are obliged to go to school. Is there any book so uniformly dull as a schoolbook? No matter how fascinating may be the possibilities of the subject, the author of a textbook always contrives to make it intensely unentertaining. Not even an adult can keep interested in a schoolbook clear to the end. Yet we scold innocent children because their books fail to interest them.

My friend, Sid Lenz, one of the best whist players in the world, once confided to me that while without superstitions and not believing in the slightest degree that there is any advantage in occupying the chair just vacated by a winner, yet he always tries to get that winning seat.

"So many men do believe in lucky numbers and lucky seats," he explained, "that I take it to keep the other fellow from getting it. If I have the winning chair, the chap who would like to have it thinks I'm almost sure to beat him. So long as he feels that way I probably will beat him. I've raised my own morale by lowering his."

SURE PROOF.

Young Cyril had been asked out to tea, and during the conversation he remarked that he was afraid it would be his last visit, because he thought they were going to move.

"But what makes you so sure your mother is going to move, Cyril?" asked his hostess. "She hasn't mentioned the matter to me."

"Ah," returned Cyril, "but you see, I scratched the banister several times yesterday and Mamma never said anything."

Planked Fish

(Mrs. Mary Morton's Daily Tested Recipe)

Clean and bone fish and arange on a buttered plank. Sprinkle with salt and pepper, spread with butter and bake until done, half an hour or so, depending on the size and kind of fish. Garnish with mashed potatoes squeezed through a pastry tube, or with shoe-string potatoes, sprinkle with finely chopped parsley, and between the potatoes put slices of cucumber and tomato, or lemon slices. Serve from plank.

Diet and Health

By LULU HUNT PETERS M. D.
Author of "Diet and Health" and "Diet For Children"

NORMAL TEMPERATURES VERY SLIGHTLY DURING THE DAY

Normal Temperature Variation.

"My trouble is that I always carry a fever of 99 degrees between 4 and 6 in the afternoon. Is there any danger in that? I eat well and feel well and am not underweight. I am 26 years old, 5 ft. 1 inch tall and weigh 121 pounds. My bowels do not move regularly. "S."

My dear S., if you never have worse trouble than four-tenths of a degree above 98.6, between 4 and 6 in the afternoon, you will be fortunate, for the normal temperature varies between 98 and 99 and the highest period is between 4 and 6 in the afternoon. The lowest is around 3 in the morning, unless you reverse your habits and sleep in the daytime and work at night.

If you had any symptoms with the little increase in temperature, then you might be concerned, for that would mean a little toxemia or poisoning.

According to the rule of 110 pounds for 5 ft. in height, in stocking feet, and 5½ pounds for each inch over that, you are about five pounds overweight. That may be right for you or it may indicate that you are eating too many starches and sugars and fats, and that might account for your bowels being so sluggish. You should take more fruits and vegetables and less starches and sugars and oils.

Don't be taking your temperature all the time, S., unless you have symptoms. You don't want to become a neurotic. Go for a physical examination once a year and then obey the hygienic rules, and stop worrying about yourself. While it is exceedingly wise to take symptoms in hand before any serious inroad is made, you must not be too introspective.

We have an article on Constipation and one on Balanced Diet which you may have.

Pipe Organ Development

"I play the pipe organ. I have played it for a year now and have practiced two and three hours a day all this time. Several people have told me that I'll have thick ankles because in pedaling the muscles of the ankles are exercised and will enlarge. Is this so? I am quite young, just 19 the other day, so I'd hate to have big, thick ankles. Of course, one does exercise the ankles a great deal in playing, and besides I play pedal exercises about a half hour daily. I do wish you would publish an answer to this, as my whole family have had many arguments over the matter. "L"

Around the ankles are tendons of the leg and foot muscles bound down by a strong sheath. While these will be strengthened they do not enlarge as muscles do, so I don't believe that you have any cause to worry, L.

If you are going to make a career of organ playing, even if the ankles were more developed, you are not going to let this interfere, are you?

Over-Emotionalism

J.—I wouldn't say that a person who is inclined to weep a bit when a sad piece of music or a sad play is heard, is over-emotional. If that were true, a lot of us would be so rated, including yours sincerely. Of course, if this tendency is marked it is a case of over-emotionalism and probably indicates a weakened nervous system from some cause—either from inheritance, or some infringement of the hygienic laws.

There are many good books on the subject of nervousness that you can get in the library, which might be of help to you.

Living and Loving

By MRS. VIRGINIA LEE

Composed Of Alien Races, America Snubs "Foreigners"

Isn't it odd that America, the "land of the free," composed of members of many alien races, is the most snobbish of all the peoples of earth? "Foreigner" is a term of reproach with us, and yet pray what are we all? Our "oldest families" date back but a few generations.

"Dear Mrs. Lee: Will you kindly advise me what to do? I am a girl 21 years old and in love with a boy three years older. I am German and he is French-Italian. My dad don't care to have me go with him because he is Italian. I have been going with him for almost three years. Mrs. Lee, would you advise a German girl to marry an Italian boy? WONDERING BOBBLES."

I would advise a German girl, or a girl of any other nationality, to marry a man she can love and honor, regardless of his nationailty. We are all Americans you know. Character counts, nothing else.

"My Dear Mrs. Lee: I have been going with a fellow for about a year and a half until just lately. He thinks I now love another fellow and tells my girl friend that I don't love him any more. Now he goes out with a girl whose reputation is anything but good. How may I win his love and confidence again? Would it injure my reputation any to go with him after he has been going with this other girl? RUSTY."

It sounds a bit peculiar that he has given you up and is going with another girl because he thinks you love another, but if it is true, and you know he still likes you, there is no harm in writing him and telling him so. Be sure it is so, however. No your reputation would not be harmed by going with him again.

"Dear Mrs. Lee: I have been writing to a young man who lives in a distant city. He wants to marry this month. I won't marry for several years. My parents think I am too young to marry now. He said we could keep on writing until spring. Then he would motor out here and see me. If I wanted to marry then I could do so. Please advise me. Answer soon. "LONESOME H. C."

You don't say how old you are. I think I would do as he says. Continue corresponding until spring, then when he comes to see you you can talk the matter over with your parents.

Lonesome M.: Yes, indeed, people do write in again quite often, and I am always glad to have them do so. Yours certainly is a puzzling case. I wish you could move away from the town and start afresh, making friends away from the first wife's influence. That would simplify your problem. Isn't there one person of influence in the town that you could confide in who could take your part and be your friend? If just one such person could be found, others would follow their example. Write me again, and maybe between us we will be able to work something out. It is, as you say, hard for me to understand such a condition.

Peter's Adventure

A COUNTRY THAT'S CRUEL TO A STRANGER

"Of course Golden-Collar chuckled and told his lady love that she could have exactly the sort of front porch she pleased.

"'But,' he continued, 'now that we have settled our own affairs will you tell me where you came from, what you were doing so far away from home and who were those funny fat Two-Legs that were chasing you when first I set eyes upon you?'

"Susan Straw-Neck, nestling close beside him, explained matters.

"'I was out feeding with the flock this afternoon, but I had eaten so much in the morning that I was really not a bit hungry, so I stopped to rest by the side of the loveliest pool. At last I could stand it no longer, I must take a dip.

Wilberforce To Dedicate New Athletic Field

GRID BATTLE WITH VIRGINIA UNION WILL FEATURE PROGRAM

Formal Exercises, Fraternity Celebration, Will Mark "Home-Coming" Day; Will Elect Queen From Campus.

Wilberforce University will dedicate its new athletic field in the home-coming football game with Virginia Union University, Saturday, November 17, marking the first time in history these schools have met on the gridiron. Between 5,000 and 7,000 people are expected to attend.

Elaborate plans are being formed for the occasion by Wilberforce students and alumni. Members of the visiting football squad, coaches and followers of the team wil receive a royal welcome at an entertainment that will extend from Friday morning to Monday morning.

Registration of the alumni will take place Friday morning, November 16. Friday afternoon the alumni will be conducted on an inspection trip about the university building and campus. That night a reception will be held in Arnett Hall and it is planned to make this a gala affair.

The four fraternity houses, Alpha Phi Alpha, Kappa Alpha Psi, Omega Psi Phi and Phi Beta Sigma, will observe "open house" to members of their respective fraternities and graduates of the university from all parts of the country are expected to return to the school for celebration.

Prof. A. J. White as chairman, aid Miss Frace I. Woodson as secretary of the Home-Coming Entertainment Committee, are leaving no stones unturned to make the home-coming the best Wilberforce has ever known.

High lights on the home-coming program aside from major interest which is attached to the intersectional football game, will include a special convocation in Shorter Hall auditorium at 10 o'clock Saturday morning, when the address of welcome will be delivered to the alumni and friends by President Gilbert H. Jones.

Another chief event for alumni ious dining room of Shorter Hall, will be a dinner served in the spaccapable of accommodating 700 people. One of the outstanding graduates will be selected to act as toastmaster. After dinner, the alumni will march in a body to the football field. The procession will be led by Prof. John C. Tinner's R. O. T. C. band.

The game will begin at 2 o'clock. Officials of the Miamia Valley Officials Association will have charge and Frank A. Young, sport editor of the Chicago Defender, will serve as field judge.

Formal dedication of the athletic field will take place between halves of the contest. Brief talks will be given by President Gilbert H. Jones, R. C. Bundy, superintendent of the C. N. and I. department, and C. C. Jenkins, business manager of the department. Following the speeches, students will entertain spectators with numerous stunts.

The new athletic field is bowl shaped and is encircled by a cinder track one-quarter of a mile in length. There is a 220-yard straight-away on the west side and a stand has also been erected on this side which will seat 3,000 people. Access to the field is gained through three entrances, one from the Columbus Pike, one from the east side of Mitchell Hall and a third at the end of a walking path leading from the gymnasium.

On Friday night, eve of the contest, Wilberforce students will stage a big pep demonstration and bonfire rally. Representative students will make speeches.

Saturday will also be featured by the crowning of the "Home-Coming Queen." She is to be chosen by popular vote on the campus from among three nominees selected by students. She will be introduced to the captains of the opposing teams and will then pin the colors of the respective schools on these leaders.

In connection with the celebration, outside organizations are arranging for dances to be held in Dayton and Springfield. All fraternity houses will observe "open house" all day Saturday to visitors and that evening regular social functions will take place under auspices of the Social Committee. The best decorated fraternity house in the university district will be awarded a prize.

Smiling Scout and laughing boy—

What a future lies ahead.

You can read it in this picture
What the "Boys' Life" day by day,
Does to make the boys so happy
Helps them travel on life's way.

"BUCCANEERS!"-THAT'S NEW CENTRAL NAME

"BUCCANEERS."

That has been selected as the nickname for Xenia Central High School athletic teams.

The winning suggestion was submitted by Louis Rachford, 201 E. Second St., who will receive free tickets to all of Central's remaining home football games and the home basketball games next season.

"Buccaneers" received the unanimous approval of the five judges, who considered sixty-three suggestions of nicknames submitted by Xenia fans in a contest conducted last week.

Most of the names sent in were so good that the judges conferred for the better part of this week before deciding that the piratical-sounding name was the most appropriate for Blue and White teams.

The judging committee was composed of Louis Hammerle, superintendent of schools; F. R. Woodruff, principal of Central High School; James D. Adair, president of the board of eductoon; Coach Walter L. "Pinky" Wilson and Robert Buell, representing the high school football squad.

To arrive at a decision, the judges each cast a ballot and a unanimous verdict resulted.

School officials believe that "Buccaneers" will make a hit with the student body and Xenia fans. The nickname, it is believed, could not be improved upon as exemplifying the fighting spirit of Xenia Central teams.

If Rachford will call at The Gazette office he will receive the season football ticket. The season basketball ticket will be mailed to him as soon as school officials issue the tickets.

MEMBERS OF WILBERFORCE GRID TEAM ENJOY CHICKEN DINNER

Members of the Wilberforce University football squad, who made the long trip to the Southern school, Tuskegee Institute in Alabama last Saturday, were honored at a chicken dinner this week.

Richard C. Bundy, superintendent of the C. N. and I. Department, Carl C. Jenkins, business manager, and Miss Inez Edwards, secretary to the superintendent, acted as hosts at the affair.

Each member of the team spoke and addresses were made by Mr. Jenkins, Miss Edwards, Superintendent Bundy, Coach Graves and Assistant Coach Carrothers. Music was furnished by Elizabeth Casselle.

Members of the squad present were: John Russell, who played sixty minutes in the big game; Franklin Jones, Mal Lewis, Stanzlas Slater, Frank Calloway, Clarence Mendenhall, Percy Terrell, Harry Ward, Hyte Boyd, Elmer Moore, U. Mitchell, M. Jones, James Terry, George Tynes, Bill Nixon, Carroll Lucas, James Gilman, Richard Horn, Howard Clark, Albert Fitch, Tim Harris, Leroy Redden, L. Smith, J. Oliver, John Rose and Manager Elmer David.

Wilberforce played Tuskegee to a 6 to 6 tie and school officials are proud of the result.

KNOXVILLE TEAM TO MEET WILBERFORCE VARSITY SATURDAY

Southerners Invade Ohio To Avenge Former Defeat

Knoxville College, Knoxville, Tenn., which will invade Wilberforce for an inter-sectional football game with Wilberforce University Saturday afternoon, is undefeated this year.

Wilberforce triumphed over Knoxville at Tennessee last year 16 to 0.

This year Knoxville has won one game and tied two. After playing Tuskegee Institute to a scoreless tie, the Tennessee eleven defeated Kentucky State and then tied Talladega College 12 to 12.

In four games so far this season, Wilberforce has suffered defeat only at the hands of Bluefield Institute, 1927 colored collegiate football champions, in the opening game of the season by a score of 2 to 0, the result of a safety in the last few minutes of play.

Playing Lincoln University at Jefferson City, Mo., Wilberforce, with substitutes mainly composing the lineup, won 12 to 6. Wilberforce then held Fisk University to a 0 to 0 tie at Nashville, Tenn., and last Saturday tied Tuskegee Institute 6 to 6 after completely outplaying the Alabama eleven.

In the Tuskegee contest, Wilberforce was counted out of at least two touchdowns. At one time the officials declared the backfield in motion and the visitors were later deprived of another score when Lewis, guard, was declared offside. Touchdowns were made in each instance but the decisions made them void.

When the facts of the case are unravelled, it will be seen that in any event Wilberforce made an exceptional showing. Tuskegee has not been defeated in five years and the lone Wilberforce touchdown marked the first time the Tuskegee goal line has been crossed on its own athletic field.

Saturday's contest with Knoxville will start at 2 o'clock.

CEDARVILLE AND ANTIOCH GAME OFF

On account of a heavy rain which converted the gridiron into a condition under which it was considered impossible to play the game, the scheduled football game between the Antioch College Division "B" team and Cedarville College on the latter's gridiron Friday afternoon was called off in the morning.

The game was postponed until next Monday afternoon. It had originally been scheduled for Saturday but the Cedarville schedule was revised in mid-season and the game was moved up to Friday.

Bilious child suffers agony.

No more headaches and sickness.

Save your child from splitting headache and prostrating sickness. If the tongue is coated and breath unpleasant, it is a sure sign the stomach, liver and bowels are clogged with constipated waste. Simply give a dose of "California Fig Syrup," and shortly after all the sour, irritating bile and fermenting undigested food will be moved from the bowels, leaving the system clean and sweet, and the child bright and strong.

"California Fig Syrup" suits child's system better than any harsh purging medicine, and they love its delicious taste.

There are many imitations of California Fig Syrup. To be sure of getting the genuine, look for the name "California" on the package. —Adv.

TROY CONTEST DATE CHANGED TO THURSDAY

Xenia Central High School's scheduled football game with Troy High will be played at Cox Memorial Athletic Field next Thursday afternoon instead of next Friday afternoon as originally planned, school officials announced Friday.

Thursday will be celebrated as "Equipment Day" for Xenia Central, similar to the home-coming games of colleges, and the largest crowd of the season is expected to attend the contest.

Arrangements are expected to be made whereby a majority of the business houses will close to permit employes to attend the game.

The Troy contest will be the fourth Miami Valley League game of the season for the Xenia Central Buccaneers. The Trojans walloped Xenia last year.

How to Strengthen Any Stomach

POSSIBLY that sour condition of your stomach is due to an over-stimulation of the gastric acid. A sour stomach isn't pleasant; and it isn't easy to excuse, when there is so simple a way to remedy it. To neutralize the harmful acid and put your stomach in good order take a little "Pape's Diapepsin"; after meals, or whenever the need is felt.

This fine remedy removes the cause of the trouble and promotes normal, healthy digestion. "Pape's Diapepsin" is sold by all druggists at 60 cents a package, and is the remedy which is recommended by millions because it gives immediate relief in all cases of difficult and painful digestion.

So, just be sure you provide yourself with "Pape's Diapepsin" today, so that stomach pain and digestive troubles need never worry you again. Or sour stomach cause you discomfort. This form of relief has helped many who thought their disorders could not be helped.

Wilberforce To Dedicate New Athletic Field

GRID BATTLE WITH VIRGINIA UNION WILL FEATURE PROGRAM

Formal Exercises, Fraternity Celebration, Will Mark "Home-Coming" Day; Will Elect Queen From Campus.

Wilberforce University will dedicate its new athletic field in the home-coming football game with Virginia Union University, Saturday, November 17, marking the first time in history these schools have met on the gridiron. Between 5,000 and 7,000 people are expected to attend.

Elaborate plans are being formed for the occasion by Wilberforce students and alumni. Members of the visiting football squad, coaches and followers of the team wil receive a royal welcome at an entertainment that will extend from Friday morning to Monday morning.

Registration of the alumni will take place Friday morning, November 16. Friday afternoon the alumni will be conducted on an inspection trip about the university building and campus. That night a reception will be held in Arnett Hall and it is planned to make this a gala affair.

The four fraternity houses, Alpha Phi Alpha, Kappa Alpha Psi, Omega Psi Phi and Phi Beta Sigma, will observe "open house" to members of their respective fraternities and graduates of the university from all parts of the country are expected to return to the school for celebration.

Prof. A. J. White as chairman, aid Miss Frace I. Woodson as secretary of the Home-Coming Entertainment Committee, are leaving no stones unturned to make the home-coming the best Wilberforce has ever known.

High lights on the home-coming program aside from major interest which is attached to the intersectional football game, will include a special convocation in Shorter Hall auditorium at 10 o'clock Saturday morning, when the address of welcome will be delivered to the alumni and friends by President Gilbert H. Jones.

Another chief event for alumni ious dining room of Shorter Hall, will be a dinner served in the spaccapable of accommodating 700 people. One of the outstanding graduates will be selected to act as toastmaster. After dinner, the alumni will march in a body to the football field. The procession will be led by Prof. John C. Tinner's R. O. T. C. band.

The game will begin at 2 o'clock. Officials of the Miamia Valley Officials Association will have charge and Frank A. Young, sport editor of the Chicago Defender, will serve as field judge.

Formal dedication of the athletic field will take place between halves of the contest. Brief talks will be given by President Gilbert H. Jones, R. C. Bundy, superintendent of the C. N. and I. department, and C. C. Jenkins, business manager of the department. Following the speeches, students will entertain spectators with numerous stunts.

The new athletic field is bowl shaped and is encircled by a cinder track one-quarter of a mile in length. There is a 220-yard straight-away on the west side and a stand has also been erected on this side which will seat 3,000 people. Access to the field is gained through three entrances, one from the Columbus Pike, one from the east side of Mitchell Hall and a third at the end of a walking path leading from the gymnasium.

On Friday night, eve of the contest, Wilberforce students will stage a big pep demonstration and bonfire rally. Representative students will make speeches.

Saturday will also be featured by the crowning of the "Home-Coming Queen." She is to be chosen by popular vote on the campus from among three nominees selected by students. She will be introduced to the captains of the opposing teams and will then pin the colors of the respective schools on these leaders.

In connection with the celebration, outside organizations are arranging for dances to be held in Dayton and Springfield. All fraternity houses will observe "open house" all day Saturday to visitors and that evening regular social functions will take place under auspices of the Social Committee. The best decorated fraternity house in the university district will be awarded a prize.

MEMBERS OF WILBERFORCE GRID TEAM ENJOY CHICKEN DINNER

Members of the Wilberforce University football squad, who made the long trip to the Southern school, Tuskegee Institute in Alabama last Saturday, were honored at a chicken dinner this week.

Richard C. Bundy, superintendent of the C. N. and I. Department, Carl C. Jenkins, business manager, and Miss Inez Edwards, secretary to the superintendent, acted as hosts at the affair.

Each member of the team spoke and addresses were made by Mr. Jenkins, Miss Edwards, Superintendent Bundy, Coach Graves and Assistant Coach Carrothers. Music was furnished by Elizabeth Casselle.

Members of the squad present were: John Russell, who played sixty minutes in the big game; Franklin Jones, Mal Lewis, Stanzlas Slater, Frank Calloway, Clarence Mendenhall, Percy Terrell, Harry Ward, Hyte Boyd, Elmer Moore, U. Mitchell, M. Jones, James Terry, George Tynes, Bill Nixon, Carroll Lucas, James Gilman, Richard Horn, Howard Clark, Albert Fitch, Tim Harris, Leroy Redden, L. Smith, J. Oliver, John Rose and Manager Elmer David.

Wilberforce played Tuskegee to a 6 to 6 tie and school officials are proud of the result.

KNOXVILLE TEAM TO MEET WILBERFORCE VARSITY SATURDAY

Southerners Invade Ohio To Avenge Former Defeat

Knoxville College, Knoxville, Tenn., which will invade Wilberforce for an inter-sectional football game with Wilberforce University Saturday afternoon, is undefeated this year.

This year Knoxville has won one game and tied two. After playing Tuskegee Institute to a scoreless tie, the Tennessee eleven defeated Kentucky State and then tied Talladega College 12 to 12.

In four games so far this season, Wilberforce has suffered defeat only at the hands of Bluefield Institute, 1927 colored collegiate football champions, in the opening game of the season by a score of 2 to 0, the result of a safety in the last few minutes of play.

Playing Lincoln University at Jefferson City, Mo., Wilberforce, with substitutes mainly composing the lineup, won 12 to 6. Wilberforce then held Fisk University to a 0 to 0 tie at Nashville, Tenn., and last Saturday tied Tuskegee Institute 6 to 6 after completely outplaying the Alabama eleven.

In the Tuskegee contest, Wilberforce was counted out of at least two touchdowns. At one time the officials declared the backfield in motion and the visitors were later deprived of another score when Lewis, guard, was declared offside. Touchdowns were made in each instance but the decisions made them void.

When the facts of the case are unravelled, it will be seen that in any event Wilberforce made an exceptional showing. Tuskegee has not been defeated in five years and the lone Wilberforce touchdown marked the first time the Tuskegee goal line has been crossed on its own athletic field.

Saturday's contest with Knoxville will start at 2 o'clock.

CEDARVILLE AND ANTIOCH GAME OFF

On account of a heavy rain which converted the gridiron into a condition under which it was considered impossible to play the game, the scheduled football game between the Antioch College Division "B" team and Cedarville College on the latter's gridiron Friday afternoon was called off in the morning.

The game was postponed until next Monday afternoon. It had originally been scheduled for Saturday but the Cedarville schedule was revised in mid-season and the game was moved up to Friday.

Bilious child suffers agony.

No more headaches and sickness.

Save your child from splitting headache and prostrating sickness. If the tongue is coated and breath unpleasant, it is a sure sign the stomach, liver and bowels are clogged with constipated waste. Simply give a dose of "California Fig Syrup," and shortly after all the sour, irritating bile and fermenting undigested food will be moved from the bowels, leaving the system clean and sweet, and the child bright and strong.

"California Fig Syrup" suits child's system better than any harsh purging medicine, and they love its delicious taste.

There are many imitations of California Fig Syrup. To be sure of getting the genuine, look for the name "California" on the package. —Adv.

TROY CONTEST DATE CHANGED TO THURSDAY

Xenia Central High School's scheduled football game with Troy High will be played at Cox Memorial Athletic Field next Thursday afternoon instead of next Friday afternoon as originally planned, school officials announced Friday.

Thursday will be celebrated as "Equipment Day" for Xenia Central, similar to the home-coming games of colleges, and the largest crowd of the season is expected to attend the contest.

Arrangements are expected to be made whereby a majority of the business houses will close to permit employes to attend the game.

The Troy contest will be the fourth Miami Valley League game of the season for the Xenia Central Buccaneers. The Trojans walloped Xenia last year.

How to Strengthen Any Stomach

POSSIBLY that sour condition of your stomach is due to an over-stimulation of the gastric acid. A sour stomach isn't pleasant; and it isn't easy to excuse, when there is so simple a way to remedy it. To neutralize the harmful acid and put your stomach in good order take a little "Pape's Diapepsin"; after meals, or whenever the need is felt.

This fine remedy removes the cause of the trouble and promotes normal, healthy digestion. "Pape's Diapepsin" is sold by all druggists at 60 cents a package, and is the remedy which is recommended by millions because it gives immediate relief in all cases of difficult and painful digestion.

So, just be sure you provide yourself with "Pape's Diapepsin" today, so that stomach pain and digestive troubles need never worry you again. Or sour stomach cause you discomfort. This form of relief has helped many who thought their disorders could not be helped.

COURT DEFERS SENTENCE ON YOUTH FOR RESISTING OFFICER

As the aftermath of a riotous Hallowe'en demonstration in Jamestown Wednesday night, Brooks Reeder, 20, Jamestown, pleaded guilty to a charge of interfering and abusing an officer in Probate Court Thursday afternoon.

Sentence was deferred by Judge S. C. Wright until after the hearing of Lewis Vogle, proprietor of a soft drink parlor in Jamestown, who will be tried at 9 a. m. November 8 on a charge of resisting and obstructing an officer in the execution of his duties.

Vogle appeared in court Friday morning, pleaded not guilty and was freed under $100 bond.

Reeder is said to have been the ring-leader of a gang of twenty-two boys who barricaded themselves in the soft drink establishment when Marshal John Baughn, former deputy sheriff, objected against them blocking roads entering the village with vehicles of ancient vintage.

Entering the store where the crowd of boys had congregated between 1 and 2 a. m., the marshal declared that he did not mind innocent fun but warned them not to carry their merry making activities to extremes.

As he turned to leave the building, Reeder is alleged to have sneaked up behind him and pushed him through the front door, which he then locked, catching the corner of the officer's coat. The gang of boys inside refused to open the door and Marshal Baughn charged Reeder cursed and defied him.

Marshal Baughn left his coat in the door and telephoned Sheriff Ohmer Tate, who went to the village with two deputies. Prior to his arrival, the door had been opened.

Leaders of the gang were ordered to appear before Dr. F. W. Ogan, village mayor, but owing to the mayor's illness, the cases were transferred to Probate Court.

COLORED MINISTER SPEAKS FOR HOOVER ON SATURDAY NIGHT

The Rev. A. W. Puller, connected with the Florida State Normal School and a representative of the national speaker's bureau, will deliver the man address at the closing colored Republican rally of the campaign at the Xenia Opera House at 8 o'clock Saturday night.

The Rev. Mr. Puller is declared to be a noted orator and an enthusiastic and well-attended rally is expected. Appearance of the famous Wilberforce University Quartette and band will also be a feature.

Monday night United States Senator Simeon D. Fess, following his custom, will bring his personal campaign for re-election to a close at a final rally at the Opera House, delivering the only address scheduled for the meeting. The address will be made at 8 o'clock.

Honoring their fellow townsman, a large number of residents of Yellow Springs will form a motorcade and attend the rally while others will come to Xenia on a special traction car chartered for the occasion. A band will also be brought along.

Ever since his entry into politics, Senator Fess has made his custom to wind up his campaign for election by addressing a Greene County audience.

SCHOOL CENSUS FOR YEAR SHOWS PUBLIC SCHOOLS HAVE 1955

A recent census places the Xenia city public school population at 1,955, a substantial increase over last year, according to Superintendent Louis Hammerle.

The population fluctuates to a considerable degree every month since it is disclosed for example that during the last month sixty-six students have withdrawn from school while fifty-three new pupils have been enrolled, somewhat offsetting this loss.

Statistics gathered to show the percentage of school attendance reveal that during October 1,265 pupils were neither absent nor tardy from classes.

COMBINED CENTRAL GLEE CLUBS APPEAR IN MUSICAL COMEDY

The combined Boys' and Girls' Glee Clubs of Xenia Central High School will present the musical comedy, "Miss Cherry Blossom", at Jean B. Elwell Auditorium Wednesday and Thursday, November 14 and 15.

Nearly 100 students will make up the cast, which will include a Japanese chorus of thirty-two girls, a boys' American chorus of twenty-five and an American chorus of thirty-five girls.

The production is under the direction of William Hugh Miller, musical instructor, who will also direct the orchestra.

The cast is composed of Dora Hayward as "Cherry Blossom;" Robert Adair as "Kokemo;" John Collins as "John Henry Smith;" Ralph Baldner as "Henry Foster Jones;" Lamar Bennett as "Horace Worthington;" Charles Adair as "James Young;" Eileen Sayre as "Jessica Vanderpool;" and Charles Zell as "Tago."

The production staff as announced by Mr. Miller includes: James Snyder, stage manager; Robert Haws, manual arts instructor, scenery supervisor; Martha Bell, sewing instructor, costumes, and Robert Adair, business manager.

Tickets may be purchased from any member of the glee clubs for 50 and 35 cents. Reserved seats will be available at Sohn's drug store at 12 o'clock noon November 13.

Entering the store where the crowd of boys had congregated between 1 and 2 a. m., the marshal declared that he did not mind innocent fun but warned them not to carry their merry making activities to extremes.

As he turned to leave the building, Reeder is alleged to have sneaked up behind him and pushed him through the front door, which he then locked, catching the corner of the officer's coat. The gang of boys inside refused to open the door and Marshal Baughn charged Reeder cursed and defied him.

Marshal Baughn left his coat in the door and telephoned Sheriff Ohmer Tate, who went to the village with two deputies. Prior to his arrival, the door had been opened.

Leaders of the gang were ordered to appear before Dr. F. W. Ogan, village mayor, but owing to the mayor's illness, the cases were transferred to Probate Court.

COLORED MINISTER SPEAKS FOR HOOVER ON SATURDAY NIGHT

The Rev. A. W. Puller, connected with the Florida State Normal School and a representative of the national speaker's bureau, will deliver the man address at the closing colored Republican rally of the campaign at the Xenia Opera House at 8 o'clock Saturday night.

The Rev. Mr. Puller is declared to be a noted orator and an enthusiastic and well-attended rally is expected. Appearance of the famous Wilberforce University Quartette and band will also be a feature.

Monday night United States Senator Simeon D. Fess, following his custom, will bring his personal campaign for re-election to a close at a final rally at the Opera House, delivering the only address scheduled for the meeting. The address will be made at 8 o'clock.

Honoring their fellow townsman, a large number of residents of Yellow Springs will form a motorcade and attend the rally while others will come to Xenia on a special traction car chartered for the occasion. A band will also be brought along.

Ever since his entry into politics, Senator Fess has made his custom to wind up his campaign for election by addressing a Greene County audience.

SCHOOL CENSUS FOR YEAR SHOWS PUBLIC SCHOOLS HAVE 1955

A recent census places the Xenia city public school population at 1,955, a substantial increase over last year, according to Superintendent Louis Hammerle.

The population fluctuates to a considerable degree every month since it is disclosed for example that during the last month sixty-six students have withdrawn from school while fifty-three new pupils have been enrolled, somewhat offsetting this loss.

Statistics gathered to show the percentage of school attendance reveal that during October 1,265 pupils were neither absent nor tardy from classes.

COMBINED CENTRAL GLEE CLUBS APPEAR IN MUSICAL COMEDY

The combined Boys' and Girls' Glee Clubs of Xenia Central High School will present the musical comedy, "Miss Cherry Blossom", at Jean B. Elwell Auditorium Wednesday and Thursday, November 14 and 15.

Nearly 100 students will make up the cast, which will include a Japanese chorus of thirty-two girls, a boys' American chorus of twenty-five and an American chorus of thirty-five girls.

The production is under the direction of William Hugh Miller, musical instructor, who will also direct the orchestra.

The cast is composed of Dora Hayward as "Cherry Blossom;" Robert Adair as "Kokemo;" John Collins as "John Henry Smith;" Ralph Baldner as "Henry Foster Jones;" Lamar Bennett as "Horace Worthington;" Charles Adair as "James Young;" Eileen Sayre as "Jessica Vanderpool;" and Charles Zell as "Tago."

The production staff as announced by Mr. Miller includes: James Snyder, stage manager; Robert Haws, manual arts instructor, scenery supervisor; Martha Bell, sewing instructor, costumes, and Robert Adair, business manager.

Tickets may be purchased from any member of the glee clubs for 50 and 35 cents. Reserved seats will be available at Sohn's drug store at 12 o'clock noon November 13.

Creamed Comments On S.S. Lesson

©1927 D CARL YODER

This lesson falls on Armistice Day which is an international holiday that will grow in importance with the years. It is a day on which to emphasize the things that promote good will and the principles of this lesson can be turned into a message and program of world peace.

Vs. 1-2—"Present your bodies a living sacrifice—be not fashioned according to the world; but be ye transformed by the renewing of your mind." Paul begins with the fundamentals of personality in the consecration to God of the body and mind. The body is the instrument of all our actions. God has redeemed it, and we have no right to turn it to any wrong use. The mind is the seat of the inner life. Consecration to God has not reached the whole man until it has filled the mind and gone down into the deepest roots of being, for it is the inner motives that give purpose and power to all outer acts.

V. 9.—"Let love be without hypocrisy;" literally, let love be without the actor's mask. The appearance of love may be put on like paint that is only skin deep and rubs off. The actor's mask is frequently worn in society.

V. 10.—"Be tenderly affectioned one with another, in honor preferring one another." Love has a quick eye and a deft hand for preferring another and it embroiders all life with beautiful behaviour.

V. 11.—"In diligence not slothful, fervent in spirit; serving the Lord." There is a great deal of slothful, lazy Christianity among us. If many a man managed his business as he does his religion, he would run straight into bankruptcy.

Vs. 12-15.—"Rejoicing in hope; patient in tribulation; steadfast in prayer." The believer rejoices in hope. Having such hope he is patient in tribulation. Snowden says, "Patience is being still when it is hard to be still." Prayer does not take trial away from us, but gives more patients and power to bear it.

Vs. 16-19—"Set not your mind on high things, but condescend to the things that are lowly." The commonest duty, the humblest deed may be polished until it shines as a jewel eliciting praise of many that never suspected its worth before.

V. 20.—"If thine enemy hunger, feed him; if he thirst, give him drink." Love for one's enemies, is one of the finest and most difficult fruits of the Christian life. It takes a saint to love enemies.

DESERVED HONOR TO DANIEL WEBSTER'S FATHER

Daniel Webster, son of a poor farmer, was in delicate health when a boy but he had a bright mind. One day when Daniel was thirteen years of age, a college bred man, a member of Congress, stopped to speak with Mr. Webster. When the stranger had gone, Mr. Webster expressed regret that he never had had the privilege of a college education and declared that he was willing to work hard that his son, Daniel, might have a higher education.

"My dear father," said Daniel, "you shall not work. Brother and I will work for you and you shall have your well earned rest."

"My child," said Webster. "It is of no importance to me. I now live but for my children. I could not give your older brothers such advantages but with their help we can do something for you. Exert yourself, improve your opportunities, learn, learn and when I am gone you will not need to go through the hardships which I have undergone and which have made me an old man before my time."

The father's plans were realized; Daniel Webster graduated from Dartmouth College, was one of the greatest congressmen of all times, a defender of the constitution who commanded the attention of the civilized world. His father's name is not known but to him belongs the honor of giving his country a great citizen.

1. WHAT IN THE CHURCH PROGRAM NEEDS THE MOST EMPHASIS? Rev. W. S. Lockhart, director of the Church Life Foundation says, he has been impressed in his travels over the United States that undue emphasis has been placed on money raised and additions received." Of course there are other items, but out of an experience of twenty-one state conventions, during the years 1925 and 1926 which Rev. Lockhart attended, the word 'worship' was mentioned only twice in reports given. The word does not seem to have a place in our vocabulary, much less in our thinking, but certainly little in our practice.

In the matter of evangelism, stewardship, missions, benevolences and other services of the church, we are making progress, but these are not major interests; they come as a result of an awakened consciousness of God. If we had a real worship period in every church, then how much easier and more normal would be all its development. We have begun at the wrong end; worship is first and service is the result of worship.

2. WHERE MAY HELPFUL ARMISTICE DAY LITERATURE BE SECURED? Such literature is in pamphlet form and may be secured freely from Miss G. S. Barker, 70 Fifth Avenue, N. Y. The titles of the leaflets are "Mobilizing for Peace", "America's International Experiment", "Varieties of Pacificism", "Armament", "How Can You Work for World Peace", "An Appeal to American Christians" and "The Churches' Plea Against War and the War System."

Discussion Questions on S.S. Lesson

©1927 D.CARL YODER

1. How much does the body have to do with determining our mind and heart?

2. In what sense are we to love each other? How can we love everybody?

3. How can we promote peace and good-will among nations?

4. What is the greatest hindrance to world peace?

5. When and how has war ever settled anything?

CLERICUS SAYS, "Each Christian is to be a peace maker. This means that Christians must learn how to manifest love in our everyday relationships, first man to man, neighbor to neighbor, then Catholic to Protestant and Protestant to Jew; then employer to employee; then white to colored; then American to Mexican; and so on until the tide of love flows from all these little rills into a great international river of love." This is one sure way to bring peace.

LESSON PRAYER

Dear Lord, help us to live and practice the life that Paul lays down in our lesson of today, which is the practical and sensible method of outlawing war, strife and hatred.

BOOK REVIEW

"Christ and Society" by Rt. Rev. Chas. Gore, Bishop of Birmingham, Charles Scribner's Sons, New York, price $2.00 give a constructive and comprehensive statement of the Christian faith for the average educated man.

"Churches at Work" by Charles Lincoln White. The Judson Press, Philadelphia, price $1.00 gives in an intimate, pouplar and concrete form the serious situation confronting the churches of America and suggests effective remedies.

Golden Rule Sunday will be observed December 2 in the churches throughout the United States to call the attention of the Christian constituency of America once more to the work of the Near East Relief.

The Federal Radio Commission has given recognition to Station WMBI of the Moody Bible Institute of Chicago. These services of gospel song, Bible teaching and Christian inspiration will be on the air each Sunday beginning November 11.

A new movement for world peace has grown out of the custom of the two minute silence at 11 a. m. on Armistice Day. This movement seeks to enlist people all over the world in a moment's silent prayer for peace day at noon with the idea that the first essential to world peace is to "think peace."

Dedication of the great new Chapel at the University of Chicago took place October 28. This Gothic structure cost over $1,890,000 and is dedicated as a symbol of the 'spirit of religion' and an expression of the University's ideals of truth seeking. This chapel is the gift of John D. Rockefeller as a part of a ten million dollar gift to the University.

The celebration of the 150th anniversary of Wesley Chapel London occurred November 1. John Wesley first preached in that church November 1, 1778. This chapel is today the mother of 100,000 Methodist churches throughout the world having approximately 40,000,000 constituents.

The Byrd Antarctic Expedition took with it when it sailed recently from New York 11 Bibles and 60 copies of the New Testament, the gift of the New York Bible Society. The copies will be distributed among the groups so that however widely separated they become, each will have one. All the books are lettered in gold on the outside "Byrd Antarctic Expedition."

CHARACTERISTICS OF AN IDEALLY EDUCATED PERSON

Professor H. H. Horne of New York University has made a collection from many reliable sources covering the characteristics of an ideally educated person which are expressed in the following statements: He is physically fit. He lives near the maximum of his efficiency. He has a body which is the ready servant of his will. He is capable of earning a living for himself. He is constantly doing his work better through study. He knows about the human factors of a situation of which he is a part. He regards other persons as having the same rights as himself. His social interests are constantly widening. He keeps old friends and makes new ones. He is indignant at social wrongs. He is a suitable life partner for another, or becoming so. He is tolerant of opinion different from his own. He has good will toward all sorts and conditions of people. He gives wisely of himself and of his means. He stands for the welfare of the larger group in the clash of human interests. He holds his existing social arrangements improvable. His loyalty extends beyond family and friends to good causes. He is self controlled without, being inert and active without being nervous. He loves nature. He prizes the creative more than the possessive. His intellectual horizon is continually expanding. His opinions are based on evidence, not on emotional attitudes. He is careful in expressing judgments. He is good company to himself. He has the courage to do right against odds. He senses his kinship with all men and the reality of which they are an express part.

The Church Invites You

THE COST OF A VITAL FAITH

Francis G. Peabody says, "I once heard a young man remark that the name of God had lost all significance to him. When, however, he was asked whether his interests, reading and companionships had been such as to keep the spiritual life real and near, he was frank enough to answer that he had never given a thought to such matters for years.

"He had been living in quite another world but he fancied that if religion were real, it would somehow break into his life by force."

Evidently religion does not break into a man's life by force but more through one's interests, reading, companionships, fellowship and holy communion. Why not accept the invitation and COME TO CHURCH NEXT SUNDAY?—D. Carl Yoder.

Creamed Comments On S.S. Lesson

©1927 D. CARL YODER

This lesson falls on Armistice Day which is an international holiday that will grow in importance with the years. It is a day on which to emphasize the things that promote good will and the principles of this lesson can be turned into a message and program of world peace.

Vs. 1-2—"Present your bodies a living sacrifice—be not fashioned according to the world; but be ye transformed by the renewing of your mind." Paul begins with the fundamentals of personality in the consecration to God of the body and mind. The body is the instrument of all our actions. God has redeemed it, and we have no right to turn it to any wrong use. The mind is the seat of the inner life. Consecration to God has not reached the whole man until it has filled the mind and gone down into the deepest roots of being, for it is the inner motives that give purpose and power to all outer acts.

V. 9.—"Let love be without hypocrisy;" literally, let love be without the actor's mask. The appearance of love may be put on like paint that is only skin deep and rubs off. The actor's mask is frequently worn in society.

V. 10.—"Be tenderly affectioned one with another, in honor preferring one another." Love has a quick eye and a deft hand for preferring another and it embroiders all life with beautiful behaviour.

V. 11.—"In diligence not slothful, fervent in spirit; serving the Lord." There is a great deal of slothful, lazy Christianity among us. If many a man managed his business as he does his religion, he would run straight into bankruptcy.

Vs. 12-15.—"Rejoicing in hope; patient in tribulation; steadfast in prayer." The believer rejoices in hope. Having such hope he is patient in tribulation. Snowden says, "Patience is being still when it is hard to be still." Prayer does not take trial away from us, but gives more patients and power to bear it.

Vs. 16-19—"Set not your mind on high things, but condescend to the things that are lowly." The commonest duty, the humblest deed may be polished until it shines as a jewel eliciting praise of many that never suspected its worth before.

V. 20.—"If thine enemy hunger, feed him; if he thirst, give him drink." Love for one's enemies, is one of the finest and most difficult fruits of the Christian life. It takes a saint to love enemies.

DESERVED HONOR TO DANIEL WEBSTER'S FATHER

Daniel Webster, son of a poor farmer, was in delicate health when a boy but he had a bright mind. One day when Daniel was thirteen years of age, a college bred man, a member of Congress, stopped to speak with Mr. Webster. When the stranger had gone, Mr. Webster expressed regret that he never had had the privilege of a college education and declared that he was willing to work hard that his son, Daniel, might have a higher education.

"My dear father," said Daniel, "you shall not work. Brother and I will work for you and you shall have your well earned rest."

"My child," said Webster, "It is of no importance to me. I now live but for my children. I could not give your older brothers such advantages but with their help we can do something for you. Exert yourself, improve your opportunities, learn, learn and when I am gone you will not need to go through the hardships which I have undergone and which have made me an old man before my time."

The father's plans were realized; Daniel Webster graduated from Dartmouth College, was one of the greatest congressmen of all times, a defender of the constitution who commanded the attention of the civilized world. His father's name is not known but to him belongs the honor of giving his country a great citizen.

1. WHAT IN THE CHURCH PROGRAM NEEDS THE MOST EMPHASIS? Rev. W. S. Lockhart, director of the Church Life Foundation says, he has been impressed in his travels over the United States that undue emphasis has been placed on money raised and additions received." Of course there are other items, but out of an experience of twenty-one state conventions, during the years 1925 and 1926 which Rev. Lockhart attended, the word 'worship' was mentioned only twice in reports given. The word does not seem to have a place in our vocabulary, much less in our thinking, but certainly little in our practice.

In the matter of evangelism, stewardship, missions, benevolences and other services of the church, we are making progress, but these are not major interests: they come as a result of an awakened consciousness of God. If we had a real worship period in every church, then how much easier and more normal would be all its development. We have begun at the wrong end; worship is first and service is the result of worship.

2. WHERE MAY HELPFUL ARMISTICE DAY LITERATURE BE SECURED? Such literature is in pamphlet form and may be secured freely from Miss G. S. Barker, 70 Fifth Avenue, N. Y. The titles of the leaflets are "Mobilizing for Peace", "America's International Experiment", "Varieties of Pacificism", "Armament", "How Can You Work for World Peace", "An Appeal to American Christians" and "The Churches' Plea Against War and the War System."

Discussion Questions on S.S. Lesson

©1927 D.CARL YODER

1. How much does the body have to do with determining our mind and heart?
2. In what sense are we to love each other? How can we love everybody?
3. How can we promote peace and good-will among nations?
4. What is the greatest hindrance to world peace?
5. When and how has war ever settled anything?

CLERICUS SAYS, "Each Christian is to be a peace maker. This means that Christians must learn how to manifest love in our everyday relationships, first man to man, neighbor to neighbor, then Catholic to Protestant and Protestant to Jew; then employer to employee; then white to colored; then American to Mexican; and so on until the tide of love flows from all these little rills into a great international river of love." This is one sure way to bring peace.

LESSON PRAYER

Dear Lord, help us to live and practice the life that Paul lays down in our lesson of today, which is the practical and sensible method of outlawing war, strife and hatred.

BOOK REVIEW

"Christ and Society" by Rt. Rev. Chas. Gore, Bishop of Birmingham, Charles Scribner's Sons, New York, price $2.00 give a constructive and comprehensive statement of the Christian faith for the average educated man.

"Churches at Work" by Charles Linoln White, The Judson Press, Philadelphia, price $1.00 gives in an intimate, pouplar and concrete form the serious situation confronting the churches of America and suggests effective remedies.

Golden Rule Sunday will be observed December 2 in the churches throughout the United States to call the attention of the Christian constituency of America once more to the work of the Near East Relief.

The Federal Radio Commission has given recognition to Station WMBI of the Moody Bible Institute of Chicago. These services of gospel song, Bible teaching and Christian inspiration will be on the air each Sunday beginning November 11.

A new movement for world peace has grown out of the custom of the two minute silence at 11 a. m. on Armistice Day. This movement seeks to enlist people all over the world in a moment's silent prayer for peace day at noon with the idea that the first essential to world peace is to "think peace."

Dedication of the great new Chapel at the University of Chicago took place October 28. This Gothic structure cost over $1,800,000 and is dedicated as a symbol of the 'spirit of religion' and an expression of the University's ideals of truth seeking. This chapel is the gift of John D. Rockefeller as a part of a ten million dollar gift to the University.

The celebration of the 150th anniversary of Wesley Chapel London occurred November 1. John Wesley first preached in that church November 1, 1778. This chapel is today the mother of 100,000 Methodist churches throughout the world having approximately 40,000,000 constituents.

The Byrd Antarctic Expedition took with it when it sailed recently from New York 11 Bibles and 60 copies of the New Testament, the gift of the New York Bible Society. The copies will be distributed among the groups so that however widely separated they become, each will have one. All the books are lettered in gold on the outside "Byrd Antarctic Expedition."

CHARACTERISTICS OF AN IDEALLY EDUCATED PERSON

Professor H. H. Horne of New York University has made a collection from many reliable sources covering the characteristics of an ideally educated person which are expressed in the following statements: He is physically fit. He lives near the maximum of his efficiency. He has a body which is the ready servant of his will. He is capable of earning a living for himself. He is constantly doing his work better through study. He knows about the human factors of a situation of which he is a part. He regards other persons as having the same rights as himself. His social interests are constantly widening. He keeps old friends and makes new ones. He is indignant at social wrongs. He is a suitable life partner for another, or becoming so. He is tolerant of opinion different from his own. He has good will toward all sorts and conditions of people. He gives wisely of himself and of his means. He stands for the welfare of the larger group in the clash of human interests. He holds his existing social arrangements improvable. His loyalty extends beyond family and friends to good causes. He is self controlled without, being inert and active without being nervous. He loves nature. He prizes the creative more than the possessive. His intellectual horizon is continually expanding. His opinions are based on evidence, not on emotional attitudes. He is careful in expressing judgments. He is good company to himself. He has the courage to do right against odds. He senses his kinship with all men and the reality of which they are an express part.

The Church Invites You

THE COST OF A VITAL FAITH

Francis G. Peabody says, "I once heard a young man remark that the name of God had lost all significance to him. When, however, he was asked whether his interests, reading and companionships had been such as to keep the spiritual life real and near, he was frank enough to answer that he had never given a thought to such matters for years.

"He had been living in quite another world but he fancied that if religion were real, it would somehow break into his life by force."

Evidently religion does not break into a man's life by force but more through one's interests, reading, companionships, fellowship and holy communion. Why not accept the invitation and COME TO CHURCH NEXT SUNDAY?—D. Carl Yoder.

The Little Yellow House

By BEATRICE BURTON -- RELEASED BY CENTRAL PRESS ASS'N. ©1928

READ THIS FIRST:

Over the poverty and discontent in the little yellow house broods a mother's love, which transmutes the dingy home to a palace of love and beauty. Emmy, the only daughter, is disappointed with her surroundings, envious of her wealthy Grandmother Pentland and Cousin Marianna, eager to try her wings. She goes to work at her first job. And there a new man, Wells Harbison, enters her life, very different from quiet, hardworking Robb, who loves her, but who represents to her only a moneyless, boring future. She decides to get away from dingy Flower Street and live her own life in a little apartment of her own, where she can entertain as she likes. So that Emmy will not leave, the little yellow house is given up, and the family goes to live in Grandmother Pentland's big house, where Mrs. Milburn is to do the housework, the servants having left. Grandmother has never liked Charlie Milburn, Emmy's father, believing him to be shiftless.

Charlie Milburn is ordered out of the house by Grandmother Pentland when he turns up late Sunday morning, intoxicated. Mrs. Milburn tries to save him.

Charlie Milburn is killed by an auto down town, and after the funeral Mrs. Milburn decides to go back to the little yellow house.

Emmy decides not to go back to Flower Street with her mother. She wants to be independent. She tells Robb he has no place in her life now.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

* * *

CHAPTER XL

Robb did not answer. He just stood, hands in pockets, looking up at the sickle moon above the house tops, and she saw his throat move as he gulped. He was always silent like that when he was hurt or unhappy.

"Robb, I wish you didn't like me the least bit," she told him, laying her hand on his coat sleeve. "I'm sorry you do. I'm sorry for so many things..... I'm sorry I can't care for you the way you want me to, but I can't. I love you just the way I'd love you if you were my own brother, I think."

He looked at her then. He shook his head. "That wasn't the way you kissed me that night last fall—as if I were your brother," he said, with huskiness in his voice. "You've changed since then..... Go and see if your mother's ready, will you? And tell Perry not to tackle those trunks alone. I'll come up and help him when they're strapped."

"Better come along now," Emmy said, and he followed her into the house.

As they started up the stairs Grandmother Pentland opened the door of the cardroom, where she had taken refuge behind a table of solitaire. She saw Robb, but pretended not to know who he was.

"Tell the trunk man to use the back stairs, Emmy," she rapped out sharply, but Robb went on up the front stairs with a humorous look for her.

"Good evening, Mrs. Pentland," he called pleasantly. "How are you?" He was nobody's baggage man!

Grandmother Pentland did not return his greeting. She glared, pursed up her proud old mouth, and went quickly back into the card room. Its baize-covered door swung softly to behind her.

The struggle-buggy looked like a gypsy van with the tin trunks, the old-fashioned "telescope" bags, the pasteboard hat boxes, and the bundles that the three boys loaded upon it.

"Thank fortune that it's too dark for the neighbors to see it!" Grandmother Pentland snapped when Mrs. Milburn went into the card room to bid her good-bye. She had been looking at it from behind the heavy lace curtains.

"Well, Rosy," she said, bitterly, "we're no better friends tonight than we were the first time you left here to go to the little yellow house twenty-six years ago! Are we?"

"Of course, we're friends," Mrs. Milburn said, with all her gentleness in her voice. "But it's a mistake for two families to try to live under one roof, that's all. And I hope you've forgiven me for the hard things I said on Sunday. I was beside myself, I suppose, or I wouldn't have said them. It wasn't your fault that you couldn't like Charlie."

Her face was wet in the darkness of the side porch when she laid it against Emmy's face and held her tight in her arms as if she never could let her go. "Goodbye, my chick," she whispered, tremulously. "I don't know what you're going to do without me to look after you. Let me know where you are as soon as you leave here, won't you? And come for dinner on Sunday. We'll be all settled by that time."

"So long, Emmy! Toodle-oo!" said young Dan, with his cryptic slang. "See you all of a sudden!"

There was not a word from Robb.

He started his car. It choked and chattered all the way down the drive. Then, as it reached the street, it back-fired mightily like a toy cannon giving a farewell salute.

The gloomy old house seemed more gloomy than usual when Emmy went back into it that night.

The door of the cardroom stood open and Grandmother Pentland called to her as she went down the hall.

"Emmy, come here! I want to talk to you."

She was sitting on the red plush sofa beside the grate, playing an elaborate game of solitaire spread out before her on a red-lacquer card table. Behind her an old mirror shone like a pool of green water.

"Emmy," she said, "were you intending to stay on here with me?"

And then, before the girl had time to answer her, she went on: "Because I'm not going to be here very long. I'm going to put this old place up for sale..... I've never had a happy moment in it, now that I look back over the years. Nobody's ever been happy in it, somehow, Emmy."

She looked around the shadowy little room as if all the unhappy memories of the house were hiding there.

"I'm going to take a suite of rooms in a hotel, or travel for a year or two," she said, slowly. "There's no use in my keeping up this place any longer. For a while I thought that maybe Marianna would leave that nit-wit husband of hers and come back to me, but I reckon she's getting along with him better than I ever expected her to..... And it's foolish to think of living alone here. Miss Bunts has a four-room suite in the Ardsley Manor, and she's twice as comfortable as I am."

She rambled on and on about rents and elevator service and maid service in apartment hotels, and forgot to ask Emmy what her own plans were.

Emmy, her brain busy with those plans, listened to her with only half an ear. At ten o'clock she went to bed to lie awake for another hour, still thinking of the little flat over-looking the park, the new life ahead of her, the new friends.....

* * *

Emmy, with her apple-blossom face and her sunny hair, had never been so lovely as she was in her plain black dress and narrow white collar and cuffs when she went to the office on Wednesday morning.

She did not see Wells Harbison until noon, when he came up to her desk and asked her to have lunch with him.

"I'd rather you didn't say anything about it to anyone," he told her, in a voice so low that Lucille Ingham could not hear it possibly, "i detest office gossip, don't you?"

Emmy supposed she did.

"Meet me at the Hollenden at twelve-thirty, then?" he asked, and she nodded.

"The Big Boss made a date with you, didn't he?" asked Lucille, who missed nothing, when he was gone.

Emmy pretended not to hear.

She banged the drawers of her desk as she closed them and loudly hummed "Love Sends a Little Gift of Roses."

"Bye, Lucille, I'm going to lunch," she said, casually, as she started for the door.

Lucille shot her a sharp look. "You heard what I said, Emmy Milburn!" she said crisply. "It's nothing to me what you do, only——"

Emmy impolitely shut the door upon her advice.

Wells Harbison was waiting in the marble-and-mahogany lobby of the quiet old hotel. Emmy saw him the minute she came in from the street. He was leaning on his cane, and in one hand he held a New York newspaper.

As she started toward him someone seized her arm above the elbow and swung her around. Marianna's bright, dark face smiled at her. Just behind her was Perry's Lovey.

"Hello, Beautiful!" cried Marianna, in her breathless, eager way. "Where are you bound for? Can't you have lunch with us? We've been shopping all morning, and we're famished, and ready to drop, besides."

Emmy shook her head, in its black turban. "I'd love to have lunch with you, but I can't," she said. "I'm going to have lunch with a man. What do you think of that?"

"I think you are stepping, that's what I think!" Marianna giggled, and then suddenly sobered. "How's Grandmother?"

Emmy told her that she was all alone in the big house once more, and a shadow crossed her cousin's lovely made-up face.

"I'll run around some day and patch up our quarrel," she said, thoughtfully. "I would have done it before this—but, you know, Emmy, I'm almost afraid to. She has such a way of spoiling things for everybody, and Jim and I have been pretty happy so far..... And so you've all left her and gone back to Flower Street?"

"I haven't," Emmy answered, "I'm going to live alone. I'll call you girls up in a day or two and let you know where I am. I want you to come to see me as soon as I get settled."

"Oh, we will," they said together. "We'd love to." And then Marianna went on to explain just why she had not gone to her Uncle Charlie Milburn's funeral.

"I'd have been blue and miserable for a week if I'd gone," she said. "I knew your mother and you understood that you had my sympathy and love and all that——" She frowned, as if she suddenly remembered that she had not so much as sent a flower or even a little note to them.

"How's Perry? Still trying to be Whistler or Sargent?" asked Lovey, who doubtless had picked up the names of a few artists from Perry. She spoke lightly, but her blue eyes were wistful.

"He's fine. He's going back home for a while and do the pictures that he's been wanting to do for so long—the Cleveland pictures, you know," Emmy said, and Lovey nodded.

"I ought to know." Her voice was laden with sarcasm. "They're all he thought about and talked about for weeks and weeks and weeks, till I thought I'd lose my mind. But I do miss him. Tell him so for me, will you?"

Emmy promised that she would. "I've got to go now, girls," she said. "The man I'm lunching with is waiting for me over here. 'Bye."

"The man with the cane?" asked Marianna. "Crickey, but he's good-looking! Lovey and I may as well tell you we've been trying to catch his eye for ten minutes. We think he's keen!"

She kissed Emmy good-bye and gave her a little push between the shoulder blades. "Go on and get him," she said, "and bring him over here so we can be introduced. Maybe he'll ask us to lunch, too."

HOOVER ALPHABET

By Mabel F. Martin

X:

On the Ballot It Will Elect Hoover.

Placing an X on the ballot was the old time symbol of hearty approval of a candidate and his party. Fifty-eight millions of men and women will be eligible to vote this year for the various candidates in the field. There will be many local problems to be fought out but above them all stands the one issue—Herbert Hoover. The voter who keeps his eye on this great outstanding figure and preserves Hoover ideals in selecting all other candidates on the ballot, will have gone a worthy service to the nation. Never has there been such an opportunity for the voter to pick a worthy public servant. Never was there a time when the country could look forward with such assurance of an able administration. There is no question about Hoover.

ARRESTED HERE FOR EMBEZZLING AUTO

George Jones, colored, wanted by Chillicothe, O., authorities on a charge of embezzlement of an auto, was arrested Thursday afternoon by Patrolman Fred Jones on a warrant issued in Chillicothe. The warrant charges Jones with embezzling a Nash auto belonging to Herman Whitehurst. Jones has been employed in Xenia for a month and one-half by a local firm as a salesman of used cars.

He was locked up at Police Headquarters awaiting the arrival of Chillicothe police, who will return him to that city.

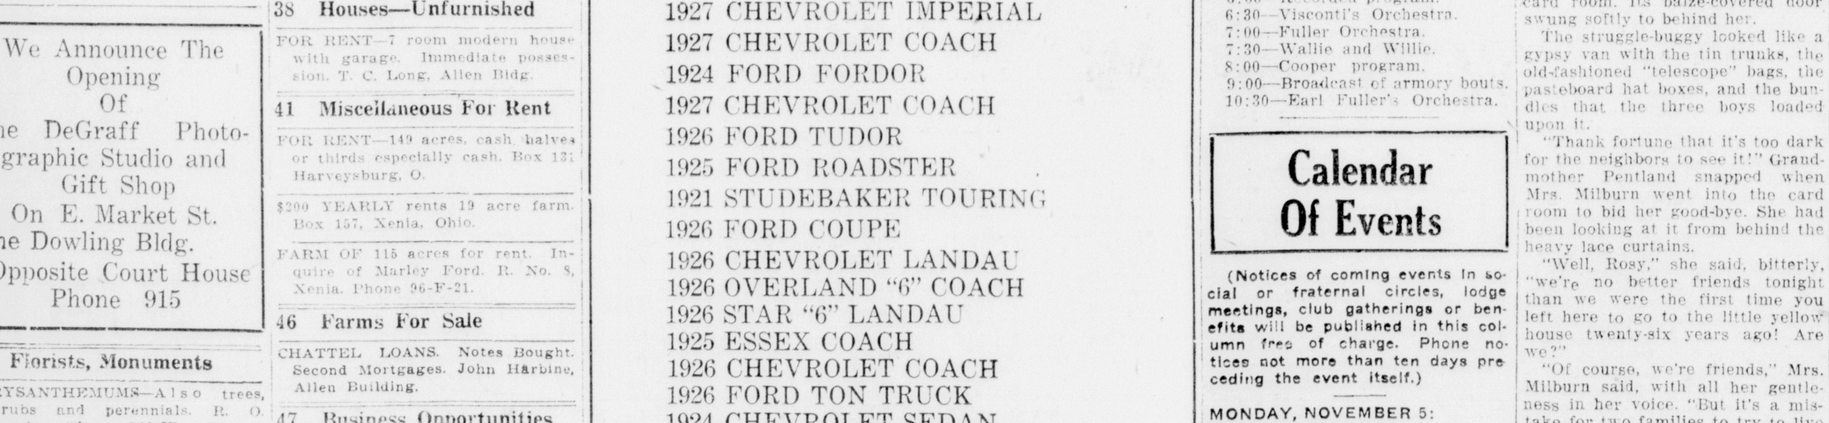

Off for Prison

Maurice E. Connolly, former president of Borough of Queens (New York City), might have been going to a banquet when this photo was taken, so unperturbed did he appear to spectators. Instead he was leaving to begin his year's prison sentence for complicity in Queens sewer graft scandal.

The Little Yellow House

By BEATRICE BURTON -- RELEASED BY CENTRAL PRESS ASS'N. ©1928

READ THIS FIRST:

Over the poverty and discontent in the little yellow house broods a mother's love, which transmutes the dingy home to a palace of love and beauty. Emmy, the only daughter, is disappointed with her surroundings, envious of her wealthy Grandmother Pentland and Cousin Marianna, eager to try her wings. She goes to work at her first job. And there a new man, Wells Harbison, enters her life, very different from quiet, hardworking Robb, who loves her, but who represents to her only a moneyless, boring future. She decides to get away from dingy Flower Street and live her own life in a little apartment of her own, where she can entertain as she likes. So that Emmy will not leave, the little yellow house is given up, and the family goes to live in Grandmother Pentland's big house, where Mrs. Milburn is to do the housework, the servants having left. Grandmother has never liked Charlie Milburn, Emmy's father, believing him to be shiftless.

Charlie Milburn is ordered out of the house by Grandmother Pentland when he turns up late Sunday morning, intoxicated. Mrs. Milburn tries to save him.

Charlie Milburn is killed by an auto down town, and after the funeral Mrs. Milburn decides to go back to the little yellow house.

Emmy decides not to go back to Flower Street with her mother. She wants to be independent. She tells Robb he has no place in her life now.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

* * *

CHAPTER XL

Robb did not answer. He just stood, hands in pockets, looking up at the sickle moon above the house tops, and she saw his throat move as he gulped. He was always silent like that when he was hurt or unhappy.

"Robb, I wish you didn't like me the least bit," she told him, laying her hand on his coat sleeve. "I'm sorry you do. I'm sorry for so many things.....I'm sorry I can't care for you the way you want me to, but I can't. I love you just the way I'd love you if you were my own brother, I think."

He looked at her then. He shook his head. "That wasn't the way you kissed me that night last fall—as if I were your brother," he said, with huskiness in his voice. "You've changed since then.....Go and see if your mother's ready, will you? And tell Perry not to tackle those trunks alone. I'll come up and help him when they're strapped."

"Better come along now," Emmy said, and he followed her into the house.

As they started up the stairs Grandmother Pentland opened the door of the cardroom, where she had taken refuge behind a table of solitaire. She saw Robb, but pretended not to know who he was.

"Tell the trunk man to use the back stairs, Emmy," she rapped out sharply, but Robb went on up the front stairs with a humorous look for her.

"Good evening, Mrs. Pentland," he called pleasantly. "How are you?" He was nobody's baggage man!

Grandmother Pentland did not return his greeting. She glared, pursed up her proud old mouth, and went quickly back into the card room. Its baize-covered door swung softly to behind her.

The struggle-buggy looked like a gypsy van with the tin trunks, the old-fashioned "telescope" bags, the pasteboard hat boxes, and the bundles that the three boys loaded upon it.

"Thank fortune that it's too dark for the neighbors to see it!" Grandmother Pentland snapped when Mrs. Milburn went into the card room to bid her good-bye. She had been looking at it from behind the heavy lace curtains.

"Well, Rosy," she said, bitterly, "we're no better friends tonight than we were the first time you left here to go to the little yellow house twenty-six years ago! Are we?"

"Of course, we're friends," Mrs. Milburn said, with all her gentleness in her voice. "But it's a mistake for two families to try to live under one roof, that's all. And I hope you've forgiven me for the hard things I said on Sunday. I was beside myself, I suppose, or I wouldn't have said them. It wasn't your fault that you couldn't like Charlie."

Her face was wet in the darkness of the side porch when she laid it against Emmy's face and held her tight in her arms as if she never could let her go. "Goodbye, my chick," she whispered, tremulously. "I don't know what you're going to do without me to look after you. Let me know where you are as soon as you leave here, won't you? And come for dinner on Sunday. We'll be all settled by that time."

"So long, Emmy! Toodle-oo!" said young Dan, with his cryptic slang. "See you all of a sudden!"

There was not a word from Robb.

He started his car. It choked and chattered all the way down the drive. Then, as it reached the street, it back-fired mightily like a toy cannon giving a farewell salute.

The gloomy old house seemed more gloomy than usual when Emmy went back into it that night.

The door of the cardroom stood open and Grandmother Pentland called to her as she went down the hall.

"Emmy, come here! I want to talk to you."

She was sitting on the red plush sofa beside the grate, playing an elaborate game of solitaire spread out before her on a red-lacquer card table. Behind her an old mirror shone like a pool of green water.

"Emmy," she said, "were you intending to stay on here with me?"

And then, before the girl had time to answer her, she went on: "Because I'm not going to be here very long. I'm going to put this old place up for sale.....I've never had a happy moment in it, now that I look back over the years. Nobody's ever been happy in it, somehow, Emmy."

She looked around the shadowy little room as if all the unhappy memories of the house were hiding there.

"I'm going to take a suite of rooms in a hotel, or travel for a year or two," she said, slowly. "There's no use in my keeping up this place any longer. For a while I thought that maybe Marianna would leave that nit-wit husband of hers and come back to me, but I reckon she's getting along with him better than I ever expected her to.....And it's foolish to think of living alone here. Miss Bunts has a four-room suite in the Ardsley Manor, and she's twice as comfortable as I am."

She rambled on and on about rents and elevator service and maid service in apartment hotels, and forgot to ask Emmy what her own plans were.

Emmy, her brain busy with those plans, listened to her with only half an ear. At ten o'clock she went to bed to lie awake for another hour, still thinking of the little flat over-looking the park, the new life ahead of her, the new friends.....

* * *

Emmy, with her apple-blossom face and her sunny hair, had never been so lovely as she was in her plain black dress and narrow white collar and cuffs when she went to the office on Wednesday morning.

She did not see Wells Harbison until noon, when he came up to her desk and asked her to have lunch with him.

"I'd rather you didn't say anything about it to anyone," he told her, in a voice so low that Lucille Ingham could not hear it possibly, "i detest office gossip, don't you?"

Emmy supposed she did.

"Meet me at the Hollenden at twelve-thirty, then?" he asked, and she nodded.

"The Big Boss made a date with you, didn't he?" asked Lucille, who missed nothing, when he was gone.

Emmy pretended not to hear.

She banged the drawers of her desk as she closed them and loudly hummed "Love Sends a Little Gift of Roses."

"Bye, Lucille, I'm going to lunch," she said, casually, as she started for the door.

Lucille shot her a sharp look. "You heard what I said, Emmy Milburn!" she said crisply. "It's nothing to me what you do, only——"

Emmy impolitely shut the door upon her advice.

Wells Harbison was waiting in the marble-and-mahogany lobby of the quiet old hotel. Emmy saw him the minute she came in from the street. He was leaning on his cane, and in one hand he held a New York newspaper.

As she started toward him someone seized her arm above the elbow and swung her around. Marianna's bright, dark face smiled at her. Just behind her was Perry's Lovey.

"Hello, Beautiful!" cried Marianna, in her breathless, eager way. "Where are you bound for? Can't you have lunch with us? We've been shopping all morning, and we're famished, and ready to drop, besides."

Emmy shook her head, in its black turban. "I'd love to have lunch with you, but I can't," she said. "I'm going to have lunch with a man. What do you think of that?"

"I think you are stepping, that's what I think!" Marianna giggled, and then suddenly sobered. "How's Grandmother?"

Emmy told her that she was all alone in the big house once more, and a shadow crossed her cousin's lovely made-up face.

"I'll run around some day and patch up our quarrel," she said, thoughtfully. "I would have done it before this—but, you know, Emmy, I'm almost afraid to. She has such a way of spoiling things for everybody, and Jim and I have been pretty happy so far.....And so you've all left her and gone back to Flower Street?"

"I haven't," Emmy answered. "I'm going to live alone. I'll call you girls up in a day or two and let you know where I am. I want you to come to see me as soon as I get settled."

"Oh, we will," they said together. "We'd love to." And then Marianna went on to explain just why she had not gone to her Uncle Charlie Milburn's funeral.

"I'd have been blue and miserable for a week if I'd gone," she said. "I knew your mother and you understood that you had my sympathy and love and all that——" She frowned, as if she suddenly remembered that she had not so much as sent a flower or even a little note to them.

"How's Perry? Still trying to be Whistler or Sargent?" asked Lovey, who doubtless had picked up the names of a few artists from Perry. She spoke lightly, but her blue eyes were wistful.

"He's fine. He's going back home for a while and do the pictures that he's been wanting to do for so long—the Cleveland pictures, you know," Emmy said, and Lovey nodded.

"I ought to know." Her voice was laden with sarcasm. "They're all he thought about and talked about for weeks and weeks and weeks, till I thought I'd lose my mind. But I do miss him. Tell him so for me, will you?"

Emmy promised that she would. "I've got to go now, girls," she said. "The man I'm lunching with is waiting for me over here. 'Bye."

"The man with the cane?" asked Marianna. "Crickey, but he's good-looking! Lovey and I may as well tell you we've been trying to catch his eye for ten minutes. We think he's keen!"

She kissed Emmy good-bye and gave her a little push between the shoulder blades. "Go on and get him," she said, "and bring him over here so we can be introduced. Maybe he'll ask us to lunch, too."

HOOVER ALPHABET

By Mabel F. Martin

X:

On the Ballot It Will Elect Hoover.

Placing an X on the ballot was the old time symbol of hearty approval of a candidate and his party. Fifty-eight millions of men and women will be eligible to vote this year for the various candidates in the field. There will be many local problems to be fought out but above them all stands the one issue—Herbert Hoover. The voter who keeps his eye on this great outstanding figure and preserves Hoover ideals in selecting all other candidates on the ballot, will have done a worthy service to the nation. Never has there been such an opportunity for the voter to pick a worthy public servant. Never was there a time when the country could look forward with such assurance of an able administration. There is no question about Hoover.

ARRESTED HERE FOR EMBEZZLING AUTO

George Jones, colored, wanted by Chillicothe, O., authorities on a charge of embezzlement of an auto, was arrested Thursday afternoon by Patrolman Fred Jones on a warrant issued in Chillicothe. The warrant charges Jones with embezzling a Nash auto belonging to Herman Whitehurst. Jones has been employed in Xenia for a month and one-half by a local firm as a salesman of used cars.

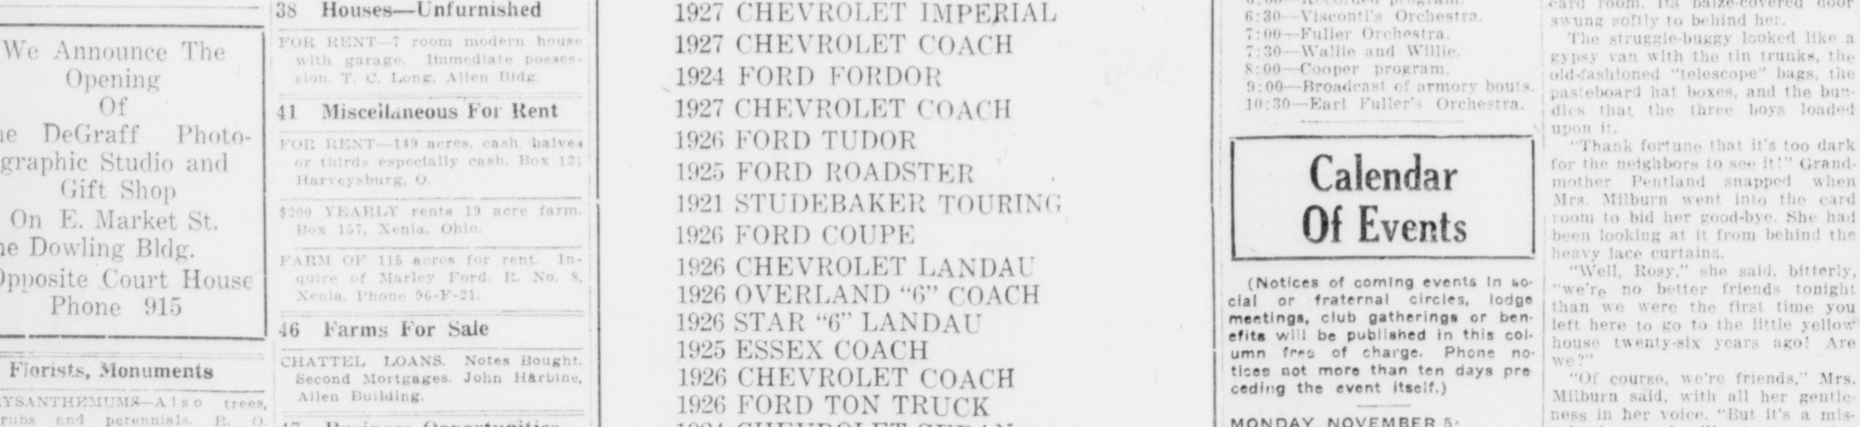

He was locked up at Police Headquarters awaiting the arrival of Chillicothe police, who will return him to that city.

Off for Prison

Maurice E. Connolly, former president of Borough of Queens (New York City), might have been going to a banquet when this photo was taken, so unperturbed did he appear to spectators. Instead he was leaving to begin his year's prison sentence for complicity in Queens sewer graft scandal.

The Theater

By SAM LOVE

NEW YORK, Nov. 2.—Peggy Hopkins Joyce—just a blonde who prefers gentlemen—has decided to vary her usual scheme of things this winter. Instead of getting married, she will return to the stage in a modern French comedy by Jacques Natanson. It will likely be called "The Fastidious Lover," a free transation of "Le Greluchon Delicat," which is an old 17th century French phrase meaning "parlor athlete." Production will be by E. Ray Goetz during November.

Rubbing it in on a score of producers who turned it down as not what the public wants, "Sun-Up" has been revived at the Lucille La Verne Theater. Long-memoried persons will recall that the play, depicting ignorant Appalachian mountain folk, first saw the light five years ago in a converted stable in Greenwich Village. It soon moved uptown to success and then ran two years in London, transforming its author, Lulu Vollmer, from a box office employe to something of an international celebrity.

* * *

In revival, "Sun-Up" enters a theater (formerly the Princess) newly christened for its star. Miss La Verne will turn over her expected profits from the revival to a $1,000,000 endowment fund for improving conditions among hill women and children of the south, particularly in the matter of schooling.

* * *

About Thanksgiving time, David Belasco's adaption of Ferenc Molnar's "The Red Mill" will be ready to open with Lenore Ulric heading a company of 100 players. The American title will be "Mima." A force of carpenters has been busy for several weeks making mysterious changes in the interior of the Belasco Theater to fit the rather elaborate needs of the play. Should the carpentering have no other result than to give everyone a better view of Miss Ulric, the benevolent Mr. Belasco's money has not been wasted.

Ten years old and tall of brow, the Theater Guild is thinking seriously of going frivolous in a big way. Entering the musical comedy pasture—no less—is reported to be the urge to which the Guild is yielding. Several seasons ago, the Guild sponsored the "Garrick Gaities," in which a bunch of youngsters made money with a sardonic, intimate type of revue. But the Guild's new yen is for something big, dazzling and elaborate, such as Ziegfeld tosses off, perhaps. Before climbing the fence, however, the Guild will probably test the clover by producing an operetta or so. Johann Strauss' "Die Fledermaus" is in prospect as a starter.

* * *

No bond has yet been posted for forfeit if it turns out to be one of those "Laugh Clown Laugh" things, so a forthcoming dramatization of Charlie Chaplin's life is awaited with considerable apprehension. The Mayfair Players are planning it, having hit upon "The Joy Peddler" as a title.

cheered today with the weather report which promised that the day would be "cool and clear."

Dr. J. W. Wilce, the Ohio coach, put the varsity through a very nominal scrimmage yesterday afternoon. Leo Raskowski, the tackle who is doing things, has an injured ankle and Barrat nurses a sore hand but Trainer Mike Chambers promised they would be all right by game time.

Ohio State authorities invited Bill Roper, the Princeton coach, to work his athletes out in Ohio Stadium this afternoon. The sons of old Nassau disembarked this morning and went to the Columbus Country Club where they will be kept from energy-killing vices until the game starts.

By fair means or foul, about 30,000 visitors, many of them Princeton fans, began arriving today.

Two students chartered a plane, others are hitch-hiking, some are wedged into special trains, still others are driving.

If more than 73,000 were here for the Michigan doings, then more than 75,000 will mill about before and after this Princeton tussle. A surprising number of the visitors were to vnd upon arriving there is no place for them to sleep or sit to watch the game. Another surprising number had no intention of seeing the game anyway.

Two special trains were due today from Chicago and New York. Tomorrow morning two others will breeze in from Chicago, two from Princeton, one from St. Louis, one from New Castle, Pa., Youngstown, Canton and Akron, one from Cleveland and another from Cincinnati.

Some of the more astute fans devised means of beating the ticket scalpers at practically their own little racket. They begged visitors to wait until two or three hours before the games and the bottom would drop out of the market. Scalpers today, however, were asking $10 for a single ticket between the 20-yard lines, and so on.

A big bon fire will be touched off tonight at the old Ohio field, celebrating home-coming. Dr. Wilce will speak.

Uppermost in the minds of Ohio fans was the pretty little tale of how Ohio State snooped around the New Jersey lair last year and how the big tiger reached out a rough paw and bowled Ohio over for a 20 to 0 score.

Following tonight's rally at the field, those who wished to revel will repair to an out-of-the-way dance place and put on the home-coming dance. Miss Louise Callahan will be crowned home-coming queen there.

The national Princeton alumni meeting was held today and the banquet is tonight. Dr. George W. Rightmire, president of Ohio State University; Dr. John Grier Hibben, Princeton president, and Bill Roper will speak.

At high noon tomorrow in Ohio Stadium the Ohio State Band will fete the Princeton band at a dinner.

Policemen declare they will have something to tell their grandchildren after tomorrow.

NOMINEE PAUSES ON WESTERN TRIP; BIG CROWD BRAVES RAIN

an operating point, ten minutes later. Local Republican leaders arranged a welcome celebration at Winton Place despite the early hour.

Hoover will be welcomed officially to Kentucky by Gov. Sampson at Louisville, where the train is scheduled to arrive at 10:10 a. m.

He will show himself in the crowds in Kentucky's metropolis in a street parade of an hour, his visit culminating in his speech from the courthouse steps. Mrs. Hoover, meanwhile, will be the guest at a reception given by Republican women.

The Republican candidate's day will come to a climax, after brief stops in Indiana and Illinois during the afternoon, at St. Louis tonight. There, in the coliseum, he will make what is regarded as the most important speech of his campaign, a final appeal for support. He will begin to speak at 8:30 a. m. over a national radio hook-up.

In western Maryland's Republican stronghold, at Cumberland, Hoover received a cordial welcome last night when his appeal for continuation of a Republican rule, the first address of his westward trip, was cheered by a crowd of 10,000 or more.

He stood on a high platform gaily decorated with bunting to address the crowd, which swarmed about the huge public square, lighted by campaign flares.

Cumberland had made elaborate preparations for the 15-minute stop of the special train. An American Legion Band kept up a lively flow of music.

There was a band also at Keyser, W. Va., the last stop of the night. Here and at Brunswick, Md., and Martinsburg, W. Va., large crowds were waiting as the train pulled up. The train is travelling on a close schedule and Hoover only had opportunity at these places to appear on the back platform and wave a greeting.

The Republican candidate indicated in his speech last night at Cumberland that he would sound the key-note of prosperity until the end of the campaign. There was no answer from him to the criticism that Governor Alfred E. Smith, his Democratic opponent, has heaped upon him in the last few days.

Hoover did reiterate this statement of figures of the increase in public school attendance during the Republican administration, despite the ridicule this brought from Smith, who declared in his Newark speech that this was something "in which we all had a part."

Hoover struck the theme of his Cumberland speech when he said that "the basis of all progress, of all advance in our country, must be its continual prosperity." The Republican party, he said, had brought prosperity, and its policies had produced, "the spiritual as well as the material advance of the nation."

HIGH SCHOOL NOTES

At a meeting of the senior class Wednesday, Edith McDonald was chosen editor-in-chief of the "cen Sen," school annual. Miss McDonald is considered well-fitted to head the staff of the year book as she has served three years on the staff of the Central High "Review," school weekly. The business staff of the annual, which is to begin its work immediately, will be headed by Lamar Bennett, who was elected business manager at the meeting.

The second of a series of educational lectures to be given during the school year will be presented Wednesday, November 7 when Dr. Samuel C. Schmucker, Ph. D., will address the student body in Jean B. Elwell Auditorium.

THE TRUTH ABOUT BRAN AND CONSTIPATION

Thousands of people eat bran regularly for the healthful roughage it provides. It is a splendid practice. But be sure you are really getting all the roughage you need when you eat bran. Doctors say it takes 100% bran to relieve constipation. Part-bran products, at best, can only accomplish part-way results. That is why they fail!

Kellogg's ALL-BRAN is 100% bran. It furnishes roughage in effective quantities—and in the most effective form: cooked and krumbled. Just two tablespoonfuls daily—chronic cases, with every meal—are guaranteed to relieve constipation.

You'll like the flavor and crispness of ALL-BRAN. Serve with milk or cream. Delicious with fruits or honey added. Mix with other cereals. Sprinkle into soups. Use in cooking. Sold by all grocers. Served everywhere. Made by Kellogg in Battle Creek.

and Loreco Ethyl 88

Ideal Winter Gasolines AT NO INCREASE IN PRICE

ONE year ago Loreco 88, and Loreco 88 Ethyl, introduced for the first time to the motoring public, met with tremendous approval. These ideal winter-time motor fuels that enabled the motorists to get away quickly on frosty mornings without the usual prolonged use of the choke made thousands of friends almost over night. And throughout the winter season Loreco 88, and Loreco 88 Ethyl, grew increasingly popular.

NOW, again, Loreco 88 and Loreco 88 Ethyl are available at all Loreco Stations at no increase in price. Both are refined from selected crudes with such accurate precision that they vaporize perfectly at a temperature far below that at which ordinary gasoline vaporizes. This makes for instant starting in cold weather. In Loreco 88 Ethyl the scientific blending with Ethyl Compound in the great Loreco Refineries produces a Perfect Knockless Motor Fuel that affords every advantage of quick starting and abundant power with compression knocks eliminated.

cheered today with the weather report which promised that the day would be "cool and clear."

Dr. J. W. Wilce, the Ohio coach, put the varsity through a very nominal scrimmage yesterday afternoon. Leo Raskowski, the tackle who is doing things, has an injured ankle and Barrat nurses a sore hand but Trainer Mike Chambers promised they would be all right by game time.

Ohio State authorities invited Bill Roper, the Princeton coach, to work his athletes out in Ohio Stadium this afternoon. The sons of old Nassau disembarked this morning and went to the Columbus Country Club where they will be kept from energy-killing vices until the game starts.

By fair means or foul, about 30,000 visitors, many of them Princeton fans, began arriving today.

Two students chartered a plane, others are hitch-hiking, some are wedged into special trains, still others are driving.

If more than 73,000 were here for the Michigan doings, then more than 75,000 will mill about before and after this Princeton tussle. A surprising number of the visitors were to vnd upon arriving there is no place for them to sleep or sit to watch the game. Another surprising number had no intention of seeing the game anyway.

Two special trains were due today from Chicago and New York. Tomorrow morning two others will breeze in from Chicago, two from Princeton, one from St. Louis, one from New Castle, Pa., Youngstown, Canton and Akron, one from Cleveland and another from Cincinnati.

Some of the more astute fans devised means of beating the ticket scalpers at practically their own little racket. They begged visitors to wait until two or three hours before the games and the bottom would drop out of the market. Scalpers today, however, were asking $10 for a single ticket between the 20-yard lines, and so on.

Uppermost in the minds of Ohio fans was the pretty little tale of how Ohio State swooped around the New Jersey lair last year and how the big tiger reached out a rough paw and bowled Ohio over for a 20 to 0 score.

Following tonight's rally at the field, those who wished to revel will repair to an out-of-the-way dance place and put on the home-coming dance. Miss Louise Callahan will be crowned home-coming queen there.

The national Princeton alumni meeting was held today and the banquet is tonight. Dr. George W. Rightmire, president of Ohio State University; Dr. John Grier Hibben, Princeton president, and Bill Roper will speak.

At high noon tomorrow in Ohio Stadium the Ohio State Band will fete the Princeton band at a dinner.

Policemen declare they will have something to tell their grandchildren after tomorrow.
